11 U. S. PILOTS FLYING SHIPS TO BRITAIN LOST AT SEA

OTTAWA, Ont., May 6 (AP)—Eleven American plane ferry pilots were listed today among 122 persons reported missing at sea from various branches of the civilian and armed services. The list included men from the army, navy, Royal Air Force, the Royal Norwegian Air Force, members of the United Kingdom and Canadian Inspection Board and some civilians. Among the Americans listed as missing was Reginald Lawrence Wells, Royal Canadian Signal Corps, whose wife is Mrs. Marjorie Wells of 90 Sargent St., Melrose Highlands, Mass.

COMMONS HECKLES EDEN, HITS BRITISH WAR POLICY

U. S. EXPORT BAN PUT ON RUSSIA

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—The United States, it was learned authoritatively today, has halted all exports to Russia of machinery or equipment which can be utilized in defense production.

WAR FOR OIL—Briefly, map shows British war for oil in Iraq . . . with (1) Basra held by British troops, (2) Habbaniyah airdrome, where British have silenced Iraqi artillery, and (3) Rutbah, key to pipeline, taken from the natives.

Commons Told U. S. Can Speed War End

LONDON, May 6 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today that the sooner United States war materials reach the battlefields of Asia, Africa and Europe the sooner the war will end.

He expressed faith that Turkey would stand by Britain and he told Arab peoples, including the Iraqis, to beware of an Axis victory.

During his review, which opened the government's statement in full dress debate on the conduct of the war, a heckling member interrupted Eden's reference to United States aid with: "Let us do a bit ourselves."

Eden promptly retorted he was "presupposing maximum effort of ourselves and the United States of America."

Government critics, among them Leslie Hore-Belisha, rose to attack Eden's long review.

"Now that events are going against us, I trust temporarily," Hore-Belisha said, "there is a tendency to minimize their importance, to distinguish them from what is happening in the Atlantic."

Labourite Hastings Bertrand Lees Smith, speaking from the front opposition bench, warned that in the battle of Suez Britain had a smaller margin time than in the battle of the Atlantic.

"In the Mediterranean," he said, "it is a race between Hitler's immediate advantage and our power to build up equipment to hold him until American supplies swing in our favor some months hence."

The Labourite speaker wanted to know why measures were not taken to keep German panzer divisions out of Libya and asked if the government was satisfied that the French government at Vichy is maintaining strict neutrality.

GREECE INFORMED
Eden, retreating ground covered last week by Prime Minister Churchill, declared Greece was informed beforehand just how much aid could be expected from Britain.

Telling of diplomatic efforts in the Middle East preceding the Nazi invasion of Greece and Yugoslavia,

Eden declared he was impressed by the loyal friendship and determination of the Turks to "stand firm against any menace to their sovereignty."

"I am sure," he added, "the loyalty to their alliance with this country will be the basis of the Turkish government's policy."

The trouble which he said was "created in Iraq, Eden went on, is of great concern to both Britain and Turkey."

KEPT OUR WORD
He declared Britain had nothing to be ashamed of in her dealings with the Arab peoples, most of all Iraq "whose independence we assured; it is we who have assisted them and in every respect have kept our word."

Eden said the British were very

The policy was adopted, it was said, despite strenuous Soviet diplomatic efforts to obtain the necessary export permits and despite the fact that some of the machines involved had been ordered and paid for by the Russians months ago.

During the past several months Russia has been successful in securing licenses for the export of machine tools and some other manufacturing equipment previously ordered here. This was the result of negotiations between Constantin Omansky, the Soviet ambassador, and Under Secretary of State Welles.

Recent developments, however, were said to have made it inadvisable for the United States to permit the export of any machinery which can be used here in defense or British aid production.

As evidence of that, informed quarters reported, the United States government recently took over a considerable quantity of machinery—some of which had been paid for by Russia and was awaiting shipment—for use in construction of new air and naval bases in Panama, Puerto Rico and elsewhere in the Caribbean.

Major reasons for the scarcity of export licenses for Soviet Russia were said to be:

1—President Roosevelt's instructions to the Office of Production Management that "every single critical machine in the United States be used the maximum number of hours each week; that every effort be made to round-up and utilize all machine tools and other vital machinery; and that the machine tool industry be expanded far beyond previous production estimates."

2—The signing of the Russo-Japanese neutrality pact, which Pravda, official mouthpiece of the Communist party, described as a blow at American and British interests.

3—Russia's anomalous position in the war and her conflicting swings of policy between co-operation and non-cooperation with Germany. This has created a desire for clarification of the Soviet's further attitude before the United States releases any shipments which might be beneficial, directly or indirectly, to the Nazis.

BRITISH, NAZI PILOTS EXCHANGE BLITZ RAIDS

By the Associated Press

Germany's Rhineland felt the scourge of a "made-in-England" blitz today—a series of raids in which RAF bombers reported attacks on Frankfurt-am-Main, Mannheim and other Rhine industrial centers as well as on the Nazi-held French coast.

A Berlin announcement said the RAF bombed the ancient German university town of Heidelberg, known for its student duels, and hit academic and hospital buildings.

Frankfurt-Am-Main, various manufacturing towns in the middle Rhine district and docks at Boulogne and Cherbourg, on the French channel coast also were bombed.

Aircraft of the British coastal command were said to have blasted objectives at the German-held French port of St. Nazaire and Nizza airdrome near Stavanger, Norway, starting large fires.

HEAVY BOMBS

The British, omitting mention of any assault on Heidelberg, said "a great weight" of high explosive bombs was rained on Mannheim.

'Grab Isles, Shut Up Japs, Get Tough', Sen. Pepper Urges

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Declaring that "it is time for the United States to get tough," Sen. Pepper (D.) of Florida, urged today that this nation, in co-operation with Great Britain, occupy Greenland, Iceland, The Azores, the Cape Verde and Canary Islands, Singapore and Dakar, West Africa.

Pepper's "get tough" program also carried these recommendations:

That the U. S. and British Navies "join openly" in the Pacific "to shut up the Japanese fleet in its lair," and

That long-range bombers, manned by American pilots enlisting voluntarily, be made available to China.

A few bombers flown by American pilots wouldn't leave enough of Tokyo to build a bonfire," he commented.

'STIFLE THREATS'

The Florida Senator, consistent Administration supporter and early advocate of aid to Britain, said in a speech prepared for Senate delivery:

"We must stifle threats against us near their source. We have already waited too long. If we continue a pussy-footing policy the foe will not fear us and our friends will not respect us."

Speaking of lease-lend cargoes, Pepper asserted that the country "should resolve that no power will keep us from getting the goods to Britain, and getting them there now."

It was up to military and naval experts, he added, to decide on the best method for guaranteeing safe delivery.

As far as Hitler was concerned, Pepper said that the United States should react to him as it had to the Barbary Coast pirates in the early years of the last century, and to the gangsters of the Dillinger days.

The suggestion of bombers and "volunteer" fliers for China was prefaced by the assertion that the time had come "to give some plain talk and if necessary some plain action to Japan."

"We know that the little yellow men are waiting behind the door with a drawn dagger to stab us when we become involved with another foe," Pepper said.

TAKE INITIATIVE

"We should take the initiative. I believe a few American pilots in first class bombing planes could make a shambles out of Tokyo."

"If the Japanese get a sample in their capital of what they did to China, . . . they may lose some of their blood-thirstiness."

Declaring he stood for "a policy of realism," the Florida Senator asserted that "we have been paralyzed for a month because the Administration and the Congress have not dared to face issues squarely and decide them."

SEN. CLAUDE E. PEPPER

"The government has ceased to lead the people of America, and where there is no leadership the people perish."

He then proposed that the President declare and Congress approve a "state of national emergency—a state in which the government would have power similar to the war power."

Pepper saw two things that the world "needs to know" from the United States:

"That America is determined that tyranny shall die and that when we have saved liberty we shall help to nurture it to maturity in all the world."

"If men ask our motives, we shall say that we are determined that international bandits shall be dealt with hereafter like we dealt with the cattle thieves of a generation ago."

He suggested that the government seize all the assets in the country belonging to the Axis powers and use them to feed "starving people abroad."

Editor Fears F. D. May Be Another Chamberlain

HAVERFORD, Pa., May 6 (AP)—Declaring that the present war is being lost not in the Mediterranean but in Washington, Raymond Leslie Buell, an editor of Fortune and former president of the Foreign Policy Association, said today "President Roosevelt is in danger of becoming the American Chamberlain."

"What this country needs and wants is an American Churchill," he stated in an address at Haverford College. "Unless the United States solves the Atlantic shipping problem during the next few months, Britain will have to sue for peace. If we do solve the shipping problem soon, Britain will almost certainly win this war."

Buell said the President should publicly inform the country to what extent U. S. supplies are now reaching Britain and to what extent they are being sunk.

LEESBURG, Ga., May 6 (AP)—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration sent a committee to investigate the needs of a Negro family which recently had obtained 13 mattresses.

The committee reported it found six of the mattresses on one bed, four on another and three on the third. The six-mattress bed was so high that its occupant had to climb onto a chair to get into it.

Cape Frowns On Jardine's Gretna Green

Reserved residents of the quiet town of Bourne frowned today on the prospect of becoming "a seaside Gretna Green," even under the marrying ministrations of the vicar who wed the Duke of Windsor and Wally.

Almost to a man, spokesmen declared that the custom of marriage has been carried out on Cape Cod the old fashioned way for more than 300 years and there's no place for the 20th century "quick-marrying" way.

This was their answer to a vow made by Dr. R. Anderson Jardine, the clergyman who defied the Archbishop of Canterbury to wed the No. 1 sweethearts of modern times that within two weeks he would leave Hollywood behind for "a seaside Gretna Green" at Bourne.

Come what may, Bourne isn't going to become a Gretna Green, an Elkton, Md., or a Seabrook, N. H., either.

"Perhaps the vicar hasn't looked into the matter sufficiently and doesn't know about our strict Massachusetts marriage laws," declared Selectman John Lewis.

Dr. Jardine sailed from England to France and on June 3, 1937, married the Duke, former English monarch, and "the woman I love."

It was the wedding of the year, the decade and the century. Just 10 days later he returned to England and resigned his vicarship at St. Paul's Church in Derington.

On July 5 he arrived in New York for a lecture tour but only 77 persons turned out for his first address at Atlantic City.

After a trip back to England he returned to the United States again in 1938 and went to Hollywood. For a time he conducted services in a Hollywood theater, but collections were so small that he gave the venture up.

In announcing he soon will be at Bourne, Dr. Jardine also said he is in favor of renewal wedding ceremonies.

The bandit scratched his head reflectively. "O. K., lady, you win," he said . . . and sauntered out of the door.

WED ARMISTICE DAY, IN BATTLE EVER AFTER

SALEM, May 6—She was married on Armistice Day but most of her married life, Mrs. Aureo Desrosiers indicated today in probate court, has been a battle.

Time after time, she testified, husband Emile tried to choke her.

Only 14 when married in St. Anthony, Quebec, Nov. 11, 1918, she charges him in a divorce libel with cruel treatment and intoxication.

Emile, contesting the suit, sought unsuccessfully, to prefer a counter-charge of infidelity.

Mrs. Desrosiers, now living in Hampshire st., Lawrence, testified that Sunday, Dec. 10, 1933, she and Emile, a Lawrence contractor, had visited her uncle in Lowell, where they had a few drinks.

On the way back home, she said, he stopped the car, "near the Russian cemetery," and announced: "Both of us are going to die together."

Then, she said, he proceeded to get rough, seizing her by the throat. In the struggle she fell out of the car. A passing motorist stopped and called police, but by that time Emile had taken to the woods.

FIGHTS EVERY WEEKEND

From then until she left him, last Aug. 1, she said, there were fights every week-end.

On one occasion, Aureo testified, she had been visiting and when she returned she found Emile "very drunk" downstairs. She went up to her room and locked the door but he followed, she asserted, forced his way in and tried to choke her.

She broke away, ran around the bed, opened a window, she said, and shouted for help, this bringing police who tucked Emile away in a cell for the night.

On another occasion, the wife said, he did a disappearing act from a night club party.

CHOKED, SHE SAYS

She finally had to go back home without him, and accompanying her were another couple and a "Mr. Taylor" who had been acting as a driver for the group.

Mrs. Desrosiers said that when she entered her home with the others, Emile sprang at her from out of the darkness, seized her and attempted to choke her.

She said she lost consciousness for 20 minutes and when the others attempted to telephone, they found the line had been cut.

ALIVE AND WELL—Very much alive today is Movita, Mexican actress wife of Jack Doyle, fish boxer, who was reported killed in a London air raid last October. In letter to Clark Gable, Movita said she was only slightly injured during the October raid . . . and added that her narrowest escape came recently when a bomb struck near a theater while she and Doyle were on the stage.

ROUND-THE-WORLD SKIPPER'S BID NOT FILED, SAYS NAVY

It was a different story Navy officials had today regarding "Old Salt" Irving Johnson, five-times-round-the-world schooner Yankee skipper from Gloucester, and his attempt to obtain a Naval Reserve commission.

Friends of Johnson declared he had been turned down last week as a Naval Reserve officer when he made application in Boston on the basis of his experience sailing since he was a youngster.

But Navy officials said today Johnson was given an application to fill out and that the 35-year-old deep water sailor has not yet filed it. Meanwhile, Johnson was reported today as at the Eastman Kodak Co. moving picture editing laboratories in Rochester, N. Y., getting his $4000 worth of films ready for a projected lecture tour.

The Navy officials said Johnson appeared last week at North Station headquarters, First Division, and inquired about a commission as lieutenant in the Reserve.

Because of his experience, he was given the application papers, they said.

Johnson has said nothing regarding the matter, but his Gloucester friends said he waited three hours at the Navy offices before finally being ushered into the presence of a naval officer.

"You have had a college education?" the naval officer is said to have asked.

"Well, no," Johnson is asserted to have replied. "I learned my navigation the hard way, from the wheel of a sturdy little schooner, Yankee."

And the naval officer is said to have commented:

"Oh, well, of course that changes everything. You could enlist in the reserve and work your way up to a commission."

Detroit CIO Calls Defense Plant Strike

DETROIT, May 6 (INS)—The UAW-CIO today called a strike among 3500 workers at the three plants of the Ex-Cell-O Corp., which has been manufacturing airplane parts and machine tools for use in armament plants.

Picket lines surrounded the three plants but police reported that there was no violence.

Lubov asserts that besides taking the name, Tatiana is also acting the part. Pending a decision she's asking $500 a month temporary alimony. Her husband and Tatiana are appearing in Cuba.

DRAFT CHIEF FOR BAN ON MEN OVER 30

PHILADELPHIA, May 6 (AP)—The national director of Selective Service wants to revise U. S. draft procedure to exempt men over 30 years old.

"They are too settled after that age," declared Gen. Lewis S. Hershey in recommending Congressional action to give the President the right to defer by age classes.

"They are past their physical peak and others find it hard to learn new skills. That has been our experience in the draft to date."

Among the older men—those in their 30's—General Hershey said "there is a great deal more dependence than we find among younger draftees and physical disabilities are more frequent."

"Physical co-ordination is demanded for training in tanks, planes and other implements of mechanized warfare. Young men are able to fill the requirements better."

After visiting Independence Hall yesterday to see the "fish bowl" from which draft numbers were drawn in 1917 and 1940, Gen. Hershey told a gathering of Selective Service board members:

"While we have fears for the future, those fears do not deal with things outside America. No great empire has ever fallen from pressure without. We must look at the internal situation and strive for unity."

States would have 1,418,000 men in the field by July 1, and that from 60,000 to 75,000 would be inducted each month during the remainder of the year.

Armistice Bride In Love War

Lawrence, the husband's counsel, took her in cross-examination but got little from her excepting some vehement denials on this and that. Asked if she drank, she replied crisply:

"A few drinks once in a while, but I never get drunk."

Q—Was the trouble between you and your husband over your drinking? A—No.

DENIES OTHER MEN CHARGE

Q—Didn't your husband have trouble with you over your running around with other men? A—No. He put that on me to 'have something on me.

Q—Don't you keep company with a married man with four children? A—No.

Q—Who is this man? A—I don't give his name.

Judge John V. Phelan here stated that unless there was a claim of infidelity, she need not name the man.

"That's why I wanted a continuance," said Lane, "to prepare a charge."

FARRIES QUESTION

Lane then resumed the cross-examination.

Q—Didn't this man about whom we are talking, leave his wife? A—I don't know. I hear something like that but I don't know.

Q—Didn't this man's wife ever come to your house and complain to you about your running around with her husband? A—No. Q—You say now that you didn't put her out of your house when she came to complain about your running around with her husband? A—I never see her. I do not know her.

Q—When you went to live at the Alberta Chambers (Broadway, Lawrence) didn't this man go to live there, too? A—I do not know.

Q—Didn't police officers come to your apartment while you were living in the Alberta Chambers? A—No.

Answering another question, she said she is now living in a flat in Hampshire st., Lawrence.

Q—This somebody we are talking about—doesn't he live in the same building? A—He has his own tenement.

Q—Doesn't he take his meals in your home? A—No, sir.

BRIDE OF 4 MONTHS LEFT BY CAMP SHOOTING VICTIM

CAMP EDWARDS, May 6—Corp. Edwin R. Smith, 21, of Frederica, Del., victim of an accidental shooting while being relieved on sentry duty, leaves a bride of four months, it was revealed today.

Word that Smith was married was brought by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene P. Smith of Milford, Del., who arrived at camp four hours after their son died at the camp hospital.

Corp. Smith's body is being sent to the home of his parents today, accompanied by Sergt. Wendell A. Stuart, a resident of Milford, and a member of the 198th Coast Artillery (A. A.) in which Smith enlisted.

At the funeral services Friday in Milford, Maj. Park W. Huntington, regimental commander, will take part.

According to Army officials, Smith, on being relieved by Corp. Sidney Burtman of Dover, Del., unloaded his .45 service revolver as required by regulations. While Burtman was placing the shells in his gun, one bullet was accidentally discharged, lodging in Smith's abdomen.

Smith was inducted Sept. 16 after two years' service in the Delaware National Guard.

GROUP URGES HIGHER TAXES, U. S. ECONOMY

WASHINGTON, May 6 (INS)—Increased taxation accompanied by rigid governmental economy in non-defense expenditures was proposed to the House ways and means committee today by a spokesman of the National Manufacturers Ass'n testifying on the Treasury's $3,500,000,000 program.

Livingston W. Houston, chairman of the association's committee on government finance, advanced a four-point program to help meet defense costs and avoid inflation. The program follows:

- 1—Establish stringent economy in ordinary expenditures of government.
- 2—Raise additional revenue by a sales tax, increase levies on corporations, reduce individual taxpayers' exemptions and boost individual tax rates.
- 3—Correct unsound features of tax structures which would be increased by the proposed new program.
- 4—Obtain additional funds by borrowing.

SECURITY TAX FOE WRITES F. D. PROTEST

YORK, Pa., May 6 (AP)—Fred Perkins, militant foe of the Federal Social Security tax, protested to President Roosevelt today against what he described as the "confiscation" of his office equipment which will be sold tomorrow at public auction for non-payment of the taxes.

The 61-year-old battery manufacturer, who was jailed eight years ago on a charge of violating minimum wage provisions of the old NRA, wrote in a letter to the President:

"You put me in jail for 18 days for violating a law that was proved unconstitutional. I now have something to say to you. It just seems you have condemned nearly everything that was the dream of the founding fathers. Small business men are fast disappearing. Your internal aggression is threatening them out."

"An instance of such aggression is your recent seizure of my office equipment and business records which you will sell at public auction May 7. You say you are doing this in order to obtain from me certain monies that you propose to turn over the private individuals. You call it a social security tax. I call it just plain confiscation. In no way whatever am I to share in its benefits. In no way whatever is it to be used for a public purpose."

Hughes Defends U. S. Way of Life

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Chief Justice Hughes said today that the people of the United States "are engaged in harnessing our national power for the defense of our way of life," but that this way of life "is worth while only because it is the pathway of the just."

Addressing the annual session of the American Law Institute, the chief justice pointed out that "the lamps of justice are dimmed or have wholly gone out in many parts of the earth, but these lights are still shining brightly here."

Norwegian Whaler, Held by Nazis, Sunk

OSLO, Norway (via Berlin), May 6 (AP)—Returning sailors reported today that the 17,801-ton Norwegian whaler Kosmos had been sunk by war action. The vessel was in British service until last February, when it was seized by the Germans.

The Kosmos, 554 feet long, became Norway's largest merchant vessel after the 18,673-ton passenger liner Oslofjord was destroyed by a mine off the English coast in December. Her home port was Sandefjord; she was built in Belfast in 1929.

Typhus Spread In French Tunisia Called Alarming

TUNIS, May 6 (AP)—A typhus epidemic is spreading in French-governed Tunisia at what informed quarters say is an alarming rate.

Doctors have been hampered by extreme shortage of necessary medical supplies. They need 2000 white mice for manufacturing vaccine.

Medical men blame the outbreak on insufficiency of food among the natives and necessity of whites riding on terminally-infected public conveyances as a result of a gasoline shortage.

A huge trailer truck bound from Chicago to Boston went out of control on a down-hill curve on the main fur-lane highway, skidded a long distance, overturned, smashed through a fence and plunged down a 20-foot embankment.

'Aid Germany Or Else'—Vichy Chief Told

LONDON, May 6 (INS)—"Free French" circles in London asserted today that French Vice-Premier Admiral Jean Darlan has served a virtual ultimatum upon Chief of State Marshal Henri Philippe Pétain, demanding that the latter assent to full collaboration with Germany.

An International News Service dispatch from Vichy said it was announced Marshal Pétain arrived this morning at his estate near Villeneuve Loubet, where he will remain three days.

According to these "Free French" quarters, Admiral Darlan's terms include passage of German troops through unoccupied France and free use by Germany of French railways leading to the Spanish border.

In addition, it was asserted, Darlan has demanded that Pétain agree to permit Germany to make use of the French navy—presumably naval bases as well as warships.

Otherwise, Darlan is said to have threatened that Germany will "get what it wants by force."

MAXIMUM WAR VOTE OF 100 SEEN RIGHT NOW IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 6 (INS)—Estimates by Congressmen on the number of war votes in the House right now ranged from "less than a dozen" up to 100. Rep. Isaac (D.) of California ventured the highest figure. Rep. Bloom (D.) of New York, chairman of the foreign affairs committee, said there would be "virtually none."

All agreed the situation could change almost overnight and declared many more war votes would be available should the President ask for a war declaration.

"There is no question the House and Senate overwhelmingly oppose the United States entering the war," Rep. Tinkham (R.) of Massachusetts said. "The experience of the last war and its results—as they should be—are decisive."

TOKYO, May 6 (AP)—Japan and French Indo-China signed today a new economic agreement dealing with problems of navigation, customs, tariff and trade.

NBC and Mutual Ban Broadcasts By Hitler, II Duce

NEW YORK, May 6 (INS)—Two of the nation's largest radio networks, the NBC and MBS, today announced that they will no longer broadcast the speeches of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini unless they are of primary historical importance.

Network officials emphasized that there was no understanding among them to keep the dictators off the air, but that it was merely a matter of using common sense in judging what people wanted to hear.

Hitler's one hour harangues, they explained, are not important enough to occupy American radio time, particularly when the speeches might interfere with prearranged commercial broadcasts of decidedly greater interest to listeners.

F.D. and War Cabinet In Speed Aid Parley

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—President Roosevelt called in top flight men from his cabinet and the Army and Navy today to discuss stepping up the production of big bombers.

He also designated Maj.-Gen. James H. Burns as an assistant to Harry L. Hopkins to handle much of the detailed work under the British aid bill and in another step directed the Secretary of Agriculture to set up a special division to handle work previously assigned to the agricultural division of the defense commission. Mr. Roosevelt, who asked Secretary Stimson last night to obtain a "substantial increase in heavy bomber production," followed that up today by calling in to conference with Stimson, Secretaries Hull, Morgenthau and Knox; Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the Army; Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations; Harry Hopkins, supervisor of the lease-lend program, and Maj.-Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Corps.

Arnold has just returned from England and has made a preliminary, oral report to Hopkins. Today's conference was to provide an opportunity, White House officials said, for Arnold to give a "full and complete report" to all members of what in some quarters has been called the "war cabinet."

The White House said a major purpose would be to consider the needs as outlined by Mr. Roosevelt in his letter to Stimson, of increasing the output of big bombers "with all possible speed." It was reported his goal is 500 heavy bombers a month.

The division of defense air reports was created by a presidential executive order, which said it was to "provide a central channel for the clearance of transactions and reports, and co-ordinate the processing of requests for aid under the (Lend-Lease) act."

30 Greek Ships Sunk, But Subs Flee to British

CANEA, Crete, May 6 (AP)—The Greek government, recapitulating the fate of its navy in the last days of the German drive through Greece, said today that all its auxiliary vessels—more than 30—had been "savagely bombed and machine-gunned, sinking with the crew."

These ships included mine-layers, patrol and escort vessels. Greece's submarines were said to have reached Alexandria, Egypt, where they joined the British fleet. "Of the 10 destroyers, three were sunk, firing to the last against dozens of German bombers," the statement said.

Two of Greece's 13 torpedo boats also were said to have reached Alexandria.

The hospital ships Hesperos, Pollice, Attiki, Socrates and Helenis were sunk, the statement said, although they were unarmed and were carrying full lights and bearing signs stipulated by the International Red Cross.

Secretary of War On Radio Tonight

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Secretary Stimson will make a radio address tonight from 10:30 to 11 o'clock E. D. T. The War Department said it would be a report on national defense preparations and progress. The speech is scheduled on both Mutual and National Broadcasting Company systems.

JIMMY IN RANGOON

RANGOON, Burma, May 5 (Delayed) (AP)—Capt. James Roosevelt, son of the President, arrived today en route to Cairo, Egypt.

EVENING AMERICAN, TUESDAY, MAY 6, 1941

What can we learn about FLAME-CONTROL from these cannons?

Everybody knows there is far more power in modern guns and today's propellant powders than in the old-fashioned wide-mouth cannon.

In the old-fashioned cannon power was wasted, spent in violent explosion and shock—in uncontrolled flame. But with new guns and powders we have built-up power, e-x-p-a-n-d-i-n-g pressure, because the flame is controlled.

Now—FLAME CONTROL in Gasoline!

Just as the modern gun needs modern powder, so modern engines need modern gasoline. Old-fashioned gasolines waste potential energy in violent, uncontrolled explosion.

In the new Hydro-formed American Gas the explosion is controlled—the combustion is regulated. The result—as in the modern gun—is power with less wasteful explosion. Violent shock is cut down, and in its place comes increasing thrust on the pistons, driving them with terrific energy.

Flame Control Gives Cushioned Power!

Because the flame is controlled, power is cushioned. The pent-up energy of the gas is now transformed into a silky-soft f-l-o-w of power. Violent shock is cut down, replaced by velvet s-m-o-o-t-h-n-e-s-s, as sustained as it is dynamic.

Revolutionizes Old Theories of Road Octane!

Official results of extensive road tests by Industry Committees show that conventional gasolines, on the average, lose octane numbers on the road. But Hydro-formed American Gas actually gains octanes on the road, actually surpasses laboratory ratings. It is more volatile, more aromatic—distributing its vaporized anti-knock constituents more evenly and impartially to all cylinders alike.

Hydro-formed AMERICAN GAS Still At Regular Gas Price!

In spite of its enormous improvement, in spite of its vastly increased value to you—you can still buy Hydro-formed American Gas at regular gas price.

Famous AMOCO-GAS Now Hydro-formed, Too!

The new Hydro-forming process has also been applied to Amoco-Gas, the original special motor fuel, which likewise moves forward and upward to an all-time high in quality and efficiency.

Hydro-forming is the latest triumph of gasoline science, the result of a revolutionary new refining process—the newest demonstration of how much work per drop gasoline can turn out.

BERLIN REPORTS PROGRESS IN BATTLES ON 3 FRONTS

BERLIN, May 6 (AP)—On three fronts—which in Germany are becoming known as the battle of the Atlantic, the battle of the Mediterranean and the battle of North Africa—the high command reported methodical progress today. German military observers pronounced developments satisfactory.

The most spectacular was in the southeast, where German ground troops occupied the Greek islands of Mytilene (Lesbos) and Khios (Chios), both within sight of the Turkish coast.

Rome meanwhile reported Italian occupation of six islands of the Kykladen (Cyclades) group, adjoining Italy's Dodecanese archipelago and standing in the southern waters of the Aegean Sea.

The occupied islands were announced as Amorgos, Anaphe, Ios, Thera, Naxos and Paros.

Looking westward from her Aegean frontier, neutral Turkey faced an almost solid German front stretching from island to island.

The Germans didn't say how the ground troops were making the water jumps and there was no indication that they were meeting any opposition from the British navy.

Crete, farther to the southwest, remained in Greek and British possession, but the Germans took the attitude that they are able to apply pressure there at will.

Axis troops besieging Tobruk, Libyan port in North Africa, reported standing off another violent British counter-attack. More routine, but from a military point of view probably more important, was last night's large-scale assault upon Glasgow and the docks along the broad River Clyde estuary, and the strafing of shipping in British waters, where more vessels were declared sent to the bottom.

Germany was outwardly calm today on the political front. The only sign of life was the denial by an authorized spokesman that any new and important negotiations were under way between France and Germany.

British Carry Fight

To New Areas in Iraq

CAIRO, Egypt, May 6 (AP)—Fighting in Iraq has spread, with British planes bombing Iraq military positions at Diwaniya and motor transport at Falluja, the RAF Middle East command announced today.

At least five Axis planes, including one or more large troop carriers, were destroyed at Benina, said the RAF communique, apparently covering operations yesterday.

CAIRO, Egypt, May 6 (AP)—A heavy sandstorm has forced a halt in fighting between British and Axis forces on the Libyan-Egyptian frontier in the Salum sector, the Middle East command announced today.

At Tobruk, 80 miles west of the frontier, where the Germans and Italians have been besieging encircled British defenders, the daily war bulletin said:

WAITER'S SPRINT WITH TRAY WINS TITLE—NEVER SPILLED A DROP

SUPPOSE a majority of the people of this democracy decided it wanted nothing but GOOD news about its government from now on.

Suppose this majority was of one race, one creed, one color. Suppose it willed that ITS ideas were RIGHT, therefore other ideas were wrong—and hence were to be suppressed.

This is a MAJORITY, don't forget; and we abide by the will of the majority in America. And, lastly, suppose this majority passed a law which said, in effect, "ALL of you must take the same medicine—from OUR bottle."

WHEN THAT HAPPENS, democracy is finished. Our forefathers put freedom of speech and thought BEYOND THE CONTROL of a mere majority. Those rights are guaranteed in the Constitution and can be repealed only if THREE-FOURTHS of the states agree.

The citizens of America have given their newspapers the task of reporting ALL the news, both good and bad. Look through the paper you are reading now. Notice how it reports facts, opinions, happenings of all kinds.

If you do not agree with the WAY it sees the world, you are perfectly free to write the editors your strongest criticism. But don't EVER deny ANY newspaper's right to report the truth as it sees the truth.

Don't EVER demand that all papers must agree with, say, the MAYOR, or the town's leading banker, or the University's most learned professor—or with YOU.

The majority of German citizens undoubtedly believes in Hitler. To this majority, Hitler can do no wrong, make no mistakes. Because all of Germany's NEWS-PAPERS must go on, day after day, agreeing with all Hitler does!

If ever the time comes here when all Americans are fed from a single spoon, we'll have only one set of opinions. That might be DESIRABLE, but it's not DEMOCRACY.

A Gray Hair Recipe Used By Thousands

Here is an easy, economical way to touch up gray-faded hair. The recipe below gives a professional looking job at home, at small cost, and makes old looking hair lovelier, fresher and younger looking. You can't go wrong either if you follow the simple directions.

Get from your druggist one ounce bay rum, one-fourth ounce glycerine, one box Barbo Compound. Mix in half pint of water, or your druggist will mix for you at small cost. Simply comb into the hair as directed. A rich, natural-looking color is imparted to gray, faded, streaked hair. This color is easily maintained; will not wash out, rub off, or affect permanents. Does not stain the scalp; is not sticky or greasy and leaves the hair soft and glossy. Try the money-saving Barbo recipe today and see how many years younger you will look.

Eden Tells Commons U. S. Can Speed War End

grateful for the offer of the good offices of the Turkish and Egyptian governments in mediation, but until Iraq withdrew her troops from Hebbaniyah and ceased hostilities, Britain would not discuss fulfillment of her treaty rights.

"Arabs in any land must know that the approach of Axis rule means the end of their liberty, which they have jealously guarded and which, in alliance with us, are safe today," he declared.

"Though Hitler may rule the lives of people he cannot rule their hearts," Eden added, "and no tyrant can rule over Europe for longer than a brief span."

Welcoming the "immense step forward by the United States in deciding to send ships to the Red Sea," the Foreign Secretary said it was Britain's privilege, "together with the help we can receive from the U. S. A.," to make the nations of Europe "secure from the haunting dread that shadows our own time."

IRISH BASES

Lees-Smith brought Irish bases into the debate, declaring that "it is worthwhile calling attention to the United States to this matter because the policy of patrol which the United States now has undertaken is being defeated and nullified by the policy of Southern Ireland of refusing us those ports."

"I believe," he added, "expression of public opinion in the United States and representations from the United States have more influence with the government of Southern Ireland than from any other country in the world."

More-Bellish said there was no question but that Britain was obligated to go to the aid of Greece, but asked why, during the months before that Italy, "the most vulnerable country in Europe" with railways and industries concentrated along 2500 miles of coastline, wasn't bombed by the RAF while the Greeks were whipping the Italian army in Albania.

The former war secretary's remarks were tempered with the observation that "a heavy burden rests on the prime minister, who has assumed great and particular responsibility for strategy; the best service that can be rendered him is to urge improvement in this matter of intelligence and its interpretation."

NOT THE LAST WORD

Maj. Clement R. Attlee, lord privy seal, told the House that when Churchill turned down the question of an imperial war council last week he was "replying to a specific question" and "did not deal with the general question of the future."

Attlee's statement was in reply to an inquiry from the Conservative Sir Robert William O'Neill as to whether Churchill's "emphasis" was not the last word on the question.

O'Neill recalled the London visit of Australian Prime Minister R. G. Menzies and asked if any other Dominion premier was expectable and Attlee replied that Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand was expected shortly.

The House cheered Attlee's statement that the "government hoped to have the benefit of Mr. Fraser's presence at meetings of the war cabinet."

CHEERS FOR GREECE

Britain's dominant need, Eden declared, is ships and more munitions, "because every move in the diplomatic field is conditioned by our military strength. Every effort must be made to reduce the disparity, for it is there we shall find they key to victory in diplomacy just as much as on the battlefield."

Speaking before a well-filled House, Eden was received quietly, but there were cheers when he referred to the aid given Greece. He told of his talk with King George II at Athens before the German invasion began.

"It was made abundantly clear that Greece was determined to resist German aggression, even if she had to count only on her own troops," he declared to enthusiastic applause.

BRITISH, NAZIS EXCHANGE BLITZ RAIDS

The Germans said RAF bombs were directed at unspecified "well-known" resorts in southern and southeastern Germany, and declared that military objectives were nowhere hit.

Hitler's Luftwaffe countered with equally violent raids on the British Isles, striking again at Belfast, the capital of Northern Ireland, where 79 deaths were reported in Sunday night's raid, and fiercely attacking Scotland's vast Clyde River shipyards which stretch from Glasgow to the sea. Liverpool's Merseyside docks were raked by bombs for the fifth consecutive night.

MUCH DAMAGE

A British statement acknowledged that the Germans, hitting in "large-scale" operations, inflicted "much damage" and that the toll of dead and wounded was expected to be high. A single direct hit on a Belfast shelter claimed 12 lives, it was reported.

With daylight, a formation of four Messerschmitts flashed across the channel, scattered machine-gun bullets in the streets of Dover and stabbed at the town's balloon barrage, sending three of the big "sky traps" down in flames.

A second attack on the balloons was delivered later by three Messerschmitt fighters.

Anti-aircraft artillery put up a heavy barrage and the German raiders turned back across Dover strait, pursued by British fighting planes. It was believed one of the Nazi planes crashed in mid-channel.

SCREAM DOWN LOW

Townpeople on their way to work took shelter when the diving Messerschmitts screamed down so low that their yellow noses and black cross insignia could be seen plainly.

Balloon ground crews blazed away with rifles and machine-guns. A shell was seen to burst near the tail of the plane and, as it rocketed skyward, smoke poured from the tail.

A flight of Spitfire fighters engaged the other three Germans as they sped back to the French coast. The chatter of their guns could be heard in Dover.

Our Austen Lake in England

By AUSTEN LAKE
STAFF REPORTER, BOSTON AMERICAN
(Copyright, 1941)

LONDON, May.—On cloudless days the sky above London is stippled with hydrogen-filled barrage balloons. They are silver-painted, sausage-shaped blimps with rudders like elephant ears to stabilize them in heavy winds. There are thousands of them anchored from 15,000 foot steel cables, thin as washline-rope and forming a network of slanting metal threads which, airmen know, are the most terrifying hazard of the sky.

Pilots cannot see these slender cables. They are invisible even at short distances and curve deceptively in the wind, so that Luftwaffe bombers never dare to dive below balloon levels lest, like moths venturing too near a candle flame, they come tumbling down, wingless and tangled in the metal web.

There are millions of dollars' worth of these big bags over London. Every open space in the city, each of its parks, has a balloon anchorage where, on clear, moonlight nights the blimps are hauled down and fastened to the ground with guy-ropes, looking much like circus elephants as they stir and shudder with each puff of air. For on clear nights the silvery shine of these big aerial puddings furnishes too much directional aid to Nazi raiders, reflecting the moon's light like bright stars. They are also too easily shot down in great blazing torches which sink slowly at first and then plummet on rooftops with an enveloping flame. Balloons and houses cost money.

ESCAPE MOORINGS

Sometimes, but not often, one of the big bags tests loose from its mooring and goes flaking off in the upper air like a truant, celestial puppy. And then the barrage men telephone the nearest RAF fighter squadron to give chase and puncture its rubberized hide with solid shot to enable them to salvage the deflated husk.

And sometimes, for no apparent reason at all, a balloon gouts a plume of black smoke and comes swirling down while all London cranes its neck to watch and the ground crew spins its motorized cable drum to drag the bag into an open area and let it burn harmlessly like a great bonfire. Friction from rubbing fabric or some mystery of internal combustion occasionally sets them off.

The balloons were down in early evening last night, as a big incandescent egg yolk illuminated the sky. London was, as usual, lightless, but there was no blackout in the heavens. Who said, "the night has a thousand eyes, the day but one, yet the light of the whole world were like the setting sun?" Nothing like that tonight!

The raid warning had uttered its brazen screech early. Somewhere over the Channel waves of Nazi bombers were droning toward the city with more cargoes of havoc while all along the coast of Norfolk, Lincoln and York, England's electric "ears" were listening—those morning-glory shaped metal cups which stand on pedestals and measure enemy speed, height and direction from time intervals which strike on opposite receivers. And somewhere in the hinterlands RAF fighter squadrons were taking their directional cues from the "ears" and soaring into the night air to intercept the raiders.

ANTI-AIR GUNS HIDDEN

The Londoner universally uses the third person singular in speaking of Nazi bombers, be they one or many. "He," said my taxi driver, a tough speaking of the devil,

"is looking for something tonight." Indeed "He," as it proved, came over thickly and often, in the worst blitz of the current year, leaving a wake of new ruins.

I went into the big park where there was a fenced off area of large caliber anti-air guns hidden in sand-bagged pits and forming a ten acre military village—perhaps the largest single concentration of "ack-ack" in the city.

A forest of long muzzles were pointing skyward in uniform direction and waiting. A voice was calling off an unintelligible gibberish in a monotone, too distant from the wire mesh fences to be heard, but in effect like a priest reciting a Latin litany. Overhead the hornet hum of motors approached steadily, an atrociously intimate sound which seemed to be directly over the tree tops, but actually, no doubt, miles away.

BATTERIES IN ACTION

And suddenly, a section of the battery fired with a uniform, single salvo that brought a queer, metallic taste to the back of one's tongue. Another battery fired and still another, ground shaking crashes that seemed to slap the bottom of one's boot soles and bring a rush of air past one's ears.

There were no searchlights and somewhere in the outer darkness, perhaps miles away, range finders were triangulating their target with the new, secret electric impulse-device which works, according to what vague information I could gather, on the principle of radio-echoes which rebounded from an enemy plane and gives instant, automatic tabulation on the plane's position.

Such apparatus is coordinated with the guns—just how, I don't pretend to describe. Nor would I if I could, for conscientious reasons of self-censorship.

Several second intervals passed before the first series of white-bright flashes appeared in the sky, one twinkling row followed by another longer twinkling row and then another—lateral blinks accompanied by throaty mutterings, "ruh-up . . . ruh-ump," as the shells exploded.

DROP BOMBS

The Nazi bombers, in the vicinity of those flashes were not visible from the ground. Their motors were droning on with that curious, triple cadence, "zzz-zzz-zzz," which comes from intentionally de-synchronization, the better to confuse the sound-detector mechanism on the ground.

Bombs were dropping now, distant detonations that seemed to vibrate lingeringly like the plucked string of a bull fiddle many times magnified and muffled. Rose colored mushroom-shaped flashes lighted the rooftops, sometimes simultaneously from various quarters of the city.

The guns in the park were maintaining a steady, three-part chorus against a background of confused, multiple fire around the city, in effect like a roll of a giant tympanum under the sticks of a drunken drummer. "He" and all his other myriad "Hes" were out in force tonight with their infernal merchandise, their combined motors sounding like a huge dynamo.

Along the thoroughfares traffic stopped and sought refuge in side streets against the walls of high buildings. Pedestrians, caloused by months of bombing, took to subways and shelters. Only the hard-shelled taxicab men stayed in their parked cabs, waiting for fares in the knowledge that tips are always doubled during a blitz.

BATTLE IN AIR

It was a hellishly unforgettable symphony which dwindled to comparative silence near midnight, punctuated only by the drum thumps of the bombs. The guns stopped and left the Satanic orchestration to the Nazis, until noticeably, a new tone was added to the score—a brisker hum of plane motors which sometimes rose to a screaming crescendo and sometimes to a discordant yowl, with a staccato machine-gun accompaniment. The Hurricane fighters had come to town.

The effect was eerie. A battle of invisible adversaries was going on in the blue-black sky, men employing the utmost instruments of predatory science to kill each other and we who huddled below, it was a battle that came only through the auditory senses and thence to the screen of imagination. One heard but saw nothing. Though a number of Nazi planes were reported to have tumbled down, there were no meteoric arcs of flame to mark the fall, at least I saw none. Just sound and more sound.

It was the hours of early morning before the bomb motors trailed off in a gradual diminuendo, their savage freight delivered and leaving behind a city which set about dressing its newest wounds, homes and office buildings destroyed, gas mains blown asunder, water supplies polluted, power lines severed.

What is your information of war-aid promises made in your name by your Statesmen?

Keep U. S. A. Out of War

YOUR OPPORTUNITY IN FREEDING THE WORLD OF WAR IS UNPRECEDENTED IN HISTORY—IT MAY NEVER BE REPEATED—SEIZE IT BEFORE IT IS TOO LATE!

WRITE TO YOUR CONGRESSMAN AND SENATORS TODAY. (Massachusetts Senators are David I. Walsh and Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. Address them at the Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.) ASK THEM TO BAN THE USE OF AMERICAN NAVAL VESSELS FOR CONVOYING SHIPMENTS INTO WAR ZONES. ALSO TELEGRAPH THE PRESIDENT AND SECRETARIES HULL AND KNOX PROTESTING AGAINST THEIR USE AND REMINDING THEM OF CAMPAIGN PLEDGES.

The spread of the war to Africa has no conceivable attribute of Democracy—but rather for the spread of Empire—What part is the United States Fleet taking in this world debacle? Ask the President and your Congressman to call and keep the FLEET HOME to protect us from possible entry of the world over as the result of the arrogant and fantastic foreign so-called defense policy of some of our Statesmen. Also write your Senators and Congressman asking them to support the WAR RESISTANCE ACT, H. R. 1561, but above all write now, today, and every day.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Rapid Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about a pint a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent, scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 million of kidney trouble that pass unnoticed from your blood. BOSTON After DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

"DU BARRY WAS A LADY" WILL NOT play a Boston retreat engagement—as advertised. (Not beginning Monday next, at any rate) . . . Aside from this authentic bulletin, we have no reliable explanation for the cancellation . . . It is probable, however, that B. G. (Buddy) De Sylva, producer of the fabulous hit, does not wish to bother his busy head with irritations connected with the so-called legitimate theater.

BUDDY IS GRAPPLING with the man-sized job of bossing a major film studio . . . In absentia, he is the headman of "Du Barry Was a Lady"—as he is also the headman of "Louisiana Purchase" and "Panama Hattie" . . . Two weeks ago, "Du Barry" etc. was banned in Minneapolis and St. Paul.

THIS DOUBLE-BARRELED barring set a precedent in the theater . . . Minneapolis and St. Paul are known as the Twin Cities . . . On several occasions, shows have been banned in Minneapolis . . . The management concerned generally accepted these official decisions with all the sadness of a book publisher hearing that an opus has been suppressed in Boston.

AFTER CELEBRATING A MINNEAPOLIS thumbs down with champagne suppers and blistering attacks on the Minneapolis city government, showmen then would proceed to book extra time across the river in St. Paul . . . (Invariably, the banned shows would set attendance records in the adjacent city.) . . . But this time, Minneapolis and St. Paul acted in concert . . . And Mr. De Sylva was forced to book the show in Milwaukee for six days instead of the normal three. (In distant Milwaukee it played to $21,000 in the six days.)

FOR A LESS SUCCESSFUL producer than Mr. De Sylva, a Milwaukee engagement of such proportion would be cause for great place—and more champagne suppers . . . But Mr. De Sylva finds himself in a precarious position in his new capacity as head of Paramount's studio . . . It is not good publicity for a movie mogul to be connected with a show of dubious moral worth . . . If Buddy's own good sense has not pointed this out, we may be sure that the Hays office has had some helpful suggestions on "Better Behaviorism By Our Better Producers."

THE MOVIES SEEMS TO BE awakening at last to the fact that there is a stirring of that devastating behemoth—in the movies' imaginings—the Legion of Decency . . . All these considerations may be intertwined in the Case of "Du Barry Was a Lady" . . . and then again, it may be only that Comedian Bert Lahr is eager to quit work at once . . . He has a job in Hollywood, and the plan to star Benny Baker in the Lahr role may have lapsed.

WE KNOW ONLY THAT WE are told—on excellent authority—that "Du Barry Was a Lady" will not prove its contention that the gal-friend of Louis XV had bad taste in kings but good taste in comics, all over again in Boston . . . If we are wrong, both the theater and the producer should be happy . . . All this space includes the news that the show was banned in Minneapolis and St. Paul, something which has not been placed before the public satisfactorily to date.

AFTER VIEWING THE COMELY Sally Rand at the Latin Quarter, we wish to withdraw our theory—of last week—that Sally will not make the headlines in the jolly way she used to . . . For, added to her other charms, Sally has emerged as a raconteuse . . . If she doesn't change her act, we have visions of the Pullman company impressing her into service as Queen of the Rolling Stock . . . Not that Sally had 'em rolling in the aisles with her jokes . . . Nor were the gags stock jokes . . . The Rand repertory (as of last night's supper show) simply belongs in the class of stories so indelibly associated in the public mind with smoking cars.

SALLY HAS SUCH A NICE FACE—It is strange the critiques such as this so frequently overlook it (or underlook it) . . . One wishes that she would elocute—if she must—on a somewhat higher plane . . . Miss Rand is fortified sufficiently as an entertainer, both with talent and nerve, to make anything but perfection an anticlimax after her dance.

CHINA'S TALKING PIG BUST AS A PROPHET; NO WONDER IT DIED!

SHANGHAI, May 6 (AP)—This, the tale of a talking pig—Shanghai's tall story of the month.

It's heard in the tea-houses and on buses, repeated by coolies, rikishamen, storekeepers and housewives. And, translated from excited Chinese, it goes like this.

It seems there was a pig which after four years of normal grubbing, announced last week to its owner, a Chinese farmer, that he was able to talk.

This porcine prodigy promised an important revelation to the farmer—if the farmer would feed him 10 pounds of red dates.

The farmer was penniless, but convinced, so he got the dates on credit. The pig gobbled the dates and then declared:

Chinese planes will bomb Shanghai in June and Chinese troops will attack the city. Rice will rise to $200 a bag, then drop to $20.

Those were his last words. He rolled over dead.

And that's all of the story except:

Rice dropped off 10 Chinese dollars today, from 145 a bag; but Chinese attacks to retake Shanghai from the Japanese seemed as far away as rice at 20 Chinese dollars a bag.

'Reduce-One' Treatment

By ARLINE GOULD
IT'S SLATED for sensational success . . . and so we're trying hard to be the first to tell about it! A one-session reducing treatment! Literally, it takes pounds off you healthfully in one session!

If you're beginning to worry about how you're going to look in the new all-revealing bathing suits . . . cheer up . . . because the directress of a famous Fifth ave. salon is arriving in Boston with a series of exciting salon successes . . . and perhaps the most remarkable is this one-time reducing treatment. "How to achieve nymph proportions, in the short period of grace before the bathing suit season, is uppermost in your mind right now . . . and this new body make-over is said to be the quickest and most effective reducing treatment on record!"

It consists of one thorough body massage and exercise treatment . . . on a magic formula . . . and it takes pounds off you, but healthfully. In addition, you're presented with an illustrated exercise chart, designed just for you . . . so if it's a dowager's hump posture, thick thighs or a broad beam that wants correcting . . . you'll correct it or them with the right exercise. The trained experts of the salon will show you how to follow these exercises at home for the fastest and best results.

That isn't all . . . by any means . . . you're also given a copy of another sensation, a seven-day diet which . . . if followed to the letter . . . will certainly help you lose a pound a day in a sane and healthful way. It's based on theories adopted from the Eicher-Benner principle originated in Zurich . . . and it's a wonderful vitality builder.

If you'd like to learn about this newest excitement in the beauty world . . . the "reduce-one" treatment . . . phone Arline Gould, L1Berty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

IF YOU were the fiery Lupe, you'd never think twice about an extra ounce in weight . . . but for every Lupe there are hundreds of . . . shall we say "more placid" . . . creatures . . . who want the same lithesome curves . . . to show in the new midriff swim things or dinner dresses . . . but since they don't live, ten pounds almost quicker than a wink . . . they have reducing problems! Today Arline Gould tells about a sensational "one treatment" reducing session for the girls who'd look like Lupe!

Know Your Vitamins

VITAMIN LACK MAKES YOU LOOK HAGGARD, OLD

"Everybody's talking about vitamins—but what can they do for me?" you ask.

Just this! If you don't get enough vitamins in the food you eat, your face may take on the nervous drawn look of the woman who's never quite well, who's always on edge. Unhealthy skin, poor eyesight and teeth, a wobbly digestion may all be yours—making you look years older than you are.

But, by planning your diet to include lots of all the health-giving vitamins, you can look the picture of youth and vitality. Even your outlook on life becomes rosier!

How to make the most of vitamins in cooking and serving foods? Our 40-page booklet, Vitamins for Health and Beauty, gives up-to-date facts about vitamins, what each does and what foods contain them. Tells requirements for children and adults. Includes vitamin-high menus, information on minerals.

Love

And Marriage She Doesn't See Him

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm 17 years old and in my last year at high school. Once or twice a week my girl friend and I go ice skating. Recently I met a young man at the rink who skated with me during the evening and then asked to see me home. However, I declined to let him. Next time I saw him he wouldn't even ask me to skate with him. I think he must have been angry because I wouldn't let him take me home.

I still go to the same rink, but never see him at all. He was a very nice young man and now I'm sorry I turned him down.

As I understand it, young people skate together at the rink and the end of the evening sees the end of their acquaintance. More than likely he'll come to the rink again, but it's a question of chance, as you don't know anything about him.

Yours truly,
TED PRUDENT.

Favorite Orange Recipes

By MARTHA LEE

THIS IS CHILD Health Week—and child health is the nation's wealth. The ideal to strive for is that the child's body be sturdy and strong with a straight back and broad chest; well-arched feet; bones correctly formed and with firm muscles—all these points in the child's inner makeup.

Outwardly, the child should have a skin free from blemishes; teeth well formed and without decay; soft, lustrous hair; clear, bright eyes with good vision; alert hearing; and no defects in the nose and throat. Then there's the digestive system, nervous system and finally the child's vitality to consider. Of course, fresh air and sunshine, rest and exercise, are important factors, but the child's daily diet must contain the essentials necessary to build sturdy bodies.

PROTECTIVE FOODS

We must include protective foods in the diet—fruits, vegetables and milk. Yet among them, many dietary benefits from these foods, vitamin C is apt to be missing unless the diet is especially planned to include it. Oranges and orange-juice help to create and maintain this physical fitness so to be desired because they are excellent providers of vitamin C.

This vitamin promotes general good health, the development of perfect teeth and good bone structure, and acts as a guard against tooth decay or gum trouble as well as aids in preventing scurvy. Since vitamin C may not be stored in the body, it should be provided daily.

Oranges also contain vitamins A, B and G, calcium, iron and phosphorus so necessary in proper child growth. And they aid digestion, stimulate the appetite, build resistance to infections and help to maintain a healthy blood supply as well as act as a mild regulator which is invaluable to children.

Because oranges do all these things for the child, and our greatest concern when we have the tiny bodies to protect is proper development, it might be well to be supplied with orange recipes especially for child delight. The following are favorites:

ORANGE HONEY CRISPY

Peel orange and separate into sections free of membrane. Allow 8 to 8 sections for each serving. Dip in warm honey and turn over in rice or corn flakes, puffed wheat or rice, or other ready-to-serve cereal which has been warmed until crisp. Arrange on plate and serve at once.

RICE AND ORANGES

2 cups fluffy, hot, cooked rice
3 oranges, peeled and sectioned
Place rice in serving dish, cover with orange sections and Lemon Sauce.

LEMON SAUCE

1 tbsp. cornstarch
1 tsp. grated lemon peel
¼ cup sugar
1 cup water
2 tbsp. lemon juice
2 tbsp. butter
Mix cornstarch, grated lemon peel, sugar and water. Boil 5 minutes. Remove from fire. Add lemon juice and butter and stir well. Keep hot until ready to serve, or serve cold if preferred.

ORANGE NOG

¼ cup orange juice
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 ½ cup evaporated milk
1-3 cup water
Combine orange juice and lemon juice. Stir into milk which has been diluted with the water. Sweeten to taste and chill. Makes one serving.

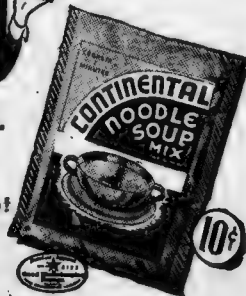

An eighth-ounce glass of fresh orange juice for breakfast is sure to be a health provider. And for variety, mash one banana to a pulp and add to the glass of fresh orange juice. Serve chilled.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

DANNY CUPID is going to put in more than an eight-hour day on June's first Saturday . . . which at this writing is the odds-on favorite to become the most popular wedding date this year . . .

Already a number of prominent Boston brides-to-be have chosen June 7 for their weddings and today comes news of two additions to the list of outstanding nuptials . . .

Katharine Mitchell Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William K. Jackson of Chestnut Hill has chosen that day for her marriage to Perkins Bass, son of former Governor and Mrs. Robert P. Bass of Peterborough, N. H. . . . Katharine is a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club and a popular member of Beantown's post deb set . . . Her fiancé, grandson of Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird of Walpole, is following in his father's footsteps by choosing politics for his career . . . Since graduating from Harvard Law School he has been elected Representative in the New Hampshire State Legislature . . . The Jacksons have a summer home at Dublin, N. H., not far from Peterborough, so Katharine will not be a stranger in the community where she will live . . .

Wedding guests cannot be two places at one time so a number of Bostonians will have to forego the pleasure of attending the Bass-Jackson nuptials in order to be in New York for the equally fashionable wedding of Frances Weld and Robert Hallowell Gardiner Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Gardiner of Brookline . . .

The betrothal of this popular couple is announced today by the future bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Weld of Hastings-on-Hudson and Wareham, Cape Cod . . . The wedding will be at Hastings-on-Hudson June 7 . . .

Future Bride Related to Saltonstalls

FRANCES, a prominent and very pretty debutante of the season just past, was presented to both Gotham and Boston society during the winter . . . She is a granddaughter of Mrs. Joel Goldthwaite of Medfield and related to Boston's distinguished and numerous Saltonstall clan . . . Her paternal grandfather was the late Philip Leverett Saltonstall, uncle of the Bay State's present Governor, and her maternal grandfather was the late General Stephen M. Weld . . . Her sisters are Mrs. S. Huntington Wolcott Jr., of Milton, Mrs. William B. Bacon of Boston, Mrs. Robert Bacon Whitney and Mrs. Ian Baldwin of New York . . . She is a sister of Philip Saltonstall Weld of Barrington, Ill., who married the former Anne Warren of Boston . . .

Her fiancé, a midshipman in the U. S. Navy, is training aboard the U.S.S. Prairie State in New York . . . He graduated from Groton School, Harvard 1937 and Harvard Law School, 1940 . . . His brother, John Hays Gardiner is training on the Prairie State with him . . . Another brother, Arthur Denny Gardiner, is an ensign on active duty on the U.S.S. Chester . . . There are three younger brothers, and a sister, Mrs. Marc Peter Jr., of Beacon st. . .

Dorothy O'Day Entertains for Guest

ALICE DOLLAR of San Francisco, who has arrived from the West Coast to visit Dorothy O'Day of Brookline, was the guest of honor at a luncheon given by Dorothy today . . . Next week the girls, who were classmates at Bennett Junior College, will attend their Alma Mammy's 50th anniversary in Millbrook, N. Y. . . Priscilla Dillingham, Betty Sexton and Mrs. Carleton Klineck, other Boston Bennett alumnae, will join them for the trip . . .

FAITH KILLIAM, Tina Vaughan and Ann Lyman have left for a round of visits in New York and Washington . . . Faith will visit her sister, Betty, who is studying voice in Gotham . . . Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gray and the latter's daughter, Alice Merriam, have returned to their home on Mt. Vernon pl., after a long winter sojourn in Tucson, Arizona . . .

A VARIETY OF GADGETS to lighten the housekeeping problems in her new home in Pittsburgh, will be found in the many packages presented to Cynthia Thorndike tomorrow, afternoon at the "nick nack" shower and tea given by her mother, Mrs. Richard K. Thorndike of Millis . . . Cynthia will be married in Dedham May 31 to Alexander Montgomery Thackara of Pittsburgh.

MARY DRAPER SAVAGE, petite and brunette daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fullerton Savage of Milton, highly approves being a member of Boston's brand new debutante group, judging by her happy smile as she arrives at the first official party for the 1941-42 debs, with Eliot Farley as her escort.

Night at Pops Aids Hospital

Mrs. J. Mott Hallowell, Mrs. Charles F. Rowley and Mr. Horace S. Frazer are among the Faulkner Hospital trustees who will attend the benefit Pops Concert tomorrow evening which is sponsored by the Alumnae Ass'n of the Faulkner Hospital School of Nursing.

Miss Jean Huelin is in charge of arrangements for the benefit and among the many who have taken tables are Dr. and Mrs. Edward L. Young, Dr. and Mrs. Channing Frothingham, Dr. and Mrs. F. William Marlowe, Jr., Dr. and Mrs. Gerald L. Doherty, Dr. and Mrs. Basil E. Barton, Dr. and Mrs. David Laberschieden, Dr. and Mrs. Raymond S. Titus, Dr. and Mrs. Charles P. Sheldon, Dr. and Mrs. Sidney C. Wiggin, Dr. and Mrs. Elliot G. Brackett, Dr. and Mrs. Henry C. Marble and many others. Miss Frances G. Ladd, administrator of the hospital; and Miss Olga I. Warburton, director of the school of nursing, will also attend.

FRANCES WELD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Weld, is to become the June bride of Robert Hallowell Gardiner, Jr., of Brookline. Betty Alden announces the engagement in her column today.

A New Figure for Spring

Registered U. S. Patent Office

By IDA JEAN KAIN

I had hoped the day of the faddy diet was over, but no! Not long ago I went to a club where they didn't know me from Eve, and what topic did I find supplying conversation by the yards? Well, it wasn't current events. It was some queer diet that wouldn't even keep a rabbit frisky alive.

Since there is a certain percentage of women who demand conversational appeal with their system of calorie counting, we might as well sift through the novelties for the good diets. Here are a few novel menus which contain all the essential elements:

BANANA AND SKIM MILK

(Follow for 10 days to lose 5 to 9 lbs.)

Breakfast
1 banana
1 glass of skim milk
If you drink coffee, have it black.

Luncheon
2 bananas and 1 glass skim milk
Watercress and Escarole Salad (mixed with Reducer's French Dr.)

Dinner
2 bananas and 1 glass skim milk
Raw cabbage and spinach or other greens
Total: 800 calories.

IF MEAT IS YOUR DISH

Breakfast
Orange juice, ¼ glass 55
Crisp bacon, 2 strips 50
Poached egg on thin slice toast, ½ pat butter 100
Coffee, clear 235

Luncheon
Grilled hamburger on bun 200
Watercress and tomato salad (reducer's French dressing) 25
Skim milk, 1 glass 80

Dinner
Mixed grill lamb chop 100
Liver, 1 piece 100
Sage, 3 in. long 75
String beans, ½ cup 15
Spinach 25
Apricots, 3 halves with juice 100

Total
(On this diet you can lose from two to three pounds per week.)

THE BREAD DIET

(to lose 12 lbs. per week)

Breakfast
Fruit juice, ¼ glass 55
Egg, 1 100
Vitamin B bread, 2 slices 130

THE current Boston Music Week Festival is more than a beautiful and gratifying observance.

The Festival serves a timely, useful and exceedingly necessary purpose.

All the participating organizations, including distinguished choral societies, college glee clubs and the Boston Symphony Orchestra, are featuring music of the New World and placing less emphasis on Old World compositions.

This will bring the people of New England closer in thought and spirit to their good friends and real allies who live in Mexico and South America.

In the troubled today, with its hymns of hate and requiems of death and destruction, we all need songs that are gay, refreshing and inspiring.

We shall find this hopeful satisfaction in the music of Latin America.

AMERICAN WIVES are not the kitchen marvels they pretend to be, says Franklin Moore, outspoken head of the American Hotel Association.

It is a crime, Mr. Moore recently told a Boston convention,

AT WORK IN NEW ENGLAND KITCHEN
Do Our Housewives Waste and Spoil Food?

that the food wasted in the United States as a result of bad cooking would feed all the armies and refugees of Europe.

Perhaps this indictment is based on truth.

Perhaps some women do ruin roasts, spoil vegetables and produce cakes that belong in the garbage can.

But why condemn the great majority of women for the mistakes of a few?

Mrs. New Englander may not be able to compete with hotel and restaurant chefs in the naming of best vintage years or in the selection of rare and fancy culinary delicacies.

But give her a bag of groceries and a good stove and she will serve a meal that no housewife in any other part of the world can hope to equal.

OUR PRETTY BLONDES—what is the matter with them and where have they gone?

From Hollywood come reports that dark-haired, brown-eyed girls are getting the motion picture plums and carrying off the lucrative contract laurels.

Ladies with golden tresses do receive roles, but not always the stellar ones.

Vivien Leigh, Hedy Lamarr, Paulette Goddard, Dorothy Lamour, Claudette Colbert and Rosalind Russell are lovely examples of the film makers' liking for brunettes.

Have theater-goers lost their taste for light complexions?

Does the fiery senorita type of woman possess more talent than her calmer, paler sister?

Did the boom for blondes end with the passing of the late Jean Harlow?

If the average young man of today were to rewrite Anita Loos' famous book would he retitl it "Gentlemen Prefer BRUNETTES"?

Many a wife-seeking American would like to have these questions answered.

Perhaps one of our attractive Boston blondes will enlighten them.

ROSALIND RUSSELL
Do Men Prefer Her Type?
title it "Gentlemen Prefer BRUNETTES"?

On the Side

*Is there on earth a space so dear
As within that blessed sphere
Two loving arms entwine?*
MOORE.

THREE young women of Roxbury named Sally, Linda and Grace have written in expressing a wish to become sisters to us. Their idea is to ask some brotherly advice regarding the men they are thinking of marrying. Naturally we are much flattered. However, it has long been the policy of this department never to advise a woman regarding a horse she is going to bet on or a man she is thinking of marrying. But, of course, in the event of horses losing or men not coming up to expectations our brotherly sympathy is ever available to all subscribers.

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: "Before you fall in love read this article," is a magazine suggestion noted. Wasn't H. Ibsen right when he said: "One cannot choose when one is going to fall in love" . . . "I'll bet you haven't a reader in Love, Ark," writes a Chicagoan. You win, sir. But I have one in Sweet Home, Ore. . . High up on my list of life's minor annoyances is the radio studio audience that claps hands and laughs loudly at all the comedians' gags . . . "Remember Ethel Barrymore in the vaudeville sketch the 'Five Pound Look'?" asks William Kerry Halligan. Wasn't it "The Twelve Pound Look," William?

SIDEGLANCES: The most successful restaurants in matter of regular patronage are those who permit the customers to inspect the kitchen . . . Benjamin Franklin went to school for only two years; between ages of eight and ten . . . it is dangerous to reduce weight at rate of more than two pounds a week and equally dangerous to go on any diet without advice of a physician . . . Answering a question: Sarah Bernhardt, the actress, was born a Jewess but was converted to the Catholic faith . . . Rowing would be more enjoyable if the rower could face in the direction the boat is going . . . When a woman calls her husband Charles instead of Charley, Herbert instead of Herb or Alfred instead of Al, it usually means said husband is a very much henpecked fellow.

PASSING BY: Grace Moore. Of the opera. Seems just the night before last night she was singing "All Alone on the Telephone" in Irving Berlin's "Music Box Revue." Grace and her husband, Valentin Perera, have a farm in Connecticut called "Far Away Meadows." My favorite farm name is that of Col. E. R. Bradley's Kentucky place, "Idle Hour" . . . W. G. Van Schmus, film theater management genius. Says he: "People nowadays are suspicious of superlatives and big statements. They want simple facts and the opportunity to judge for themselves." Hollywood press agents please note!

WHEN TO STOP: "They said it couldn't be done but he did it." That was the desk motto of a man I know who tossed millions in good money into a single bad proposition. Every time anybody would suggest he give up the hopeless project he would point to the aforementioned desk motto. Now he's broke. It's a smart man who knows when he's licked. Persistence should be tempered with judgment. The fellow who knows when to stop has something. Anyway, don't let the starry-eyed poetic desk motto writers get the better of your common sense.

PLEASE NOTE: It is being said "all" taxes take about 20 cents of the average man's dollar. I believe if all "hidden" taxes were considered the take would be much higher than that. But I could be wrong . . . That "One Man in Seven Shaves Daily" is what a seller of shaving soap states. Sellers of soap, razor blades, etc., should launch a campaign to increase this ratio. They'd probably have no difficulty in obtaining feminine co-operation. I understand girls don't care much for that feeling of being slightly sandpapered which goes with the affectionate salutation of an unshaved sweetheart or husband.

MOST EXPENSIVE fur coat ever sold in Manhattan was a sable, priced at $35,000, bought by a Mrs. Drouillard in 1912. That would be same as paying around $65,000 for a coat at present buying power of the dollar . . . A celebrated "Cute-Little Trick" is Margaret Mitchell, author of "Gone With the Wind." Margaret weighs 100 pounds, is 4 feet 11 inches tall. Anita Loos, author of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," is even smaller than Margaret.

THEY TELL ME: A poll of the Navy reveals that sailors prefer tall girls. How can this startling spread of preference for the lengthy ladies be explained? Is it due to propaganda? The time appears to have come when the "Cute, Little Tricks" should do something about regaining their previous commanding position in the hearts of their countrymen . . . "Have just finished my first novel. It is about a girl who loved and lost. A torch song in prose," writes a New Yorker. "Can you suggest a title?" How about "Rapture's Roadway" inspired by lines of Laurence Hope: Whom do you lead on Rapture's roadway, far Before you agonize them in farewell?

THAT GREAT SOLDIER, Major General Hunter Liggett, once said: "I am under no patriotic illusion that one good American can whip any ten foreigners. I know, on the contrary, that one well-trained, well-led foreigner is much more likely to whip ten good but untrained Americans" . . . Now United States is lending money and selling bombers to China on credit. However, the fact will always remain that during the first three years of Japan's attack on China the Japanese received 80 per cent of their oil from the United States. And is still receiving aid from Americans. What do you make of it, Watson? This department is baffled.

SANDRA KEEPS HER FRIENDS GUESSING

By Leonard Lyons

Sandra Rambeau

NEW YORK, May 6—Sandra Rambeau, who was reported to have married Gen. Von Epp in Paris, is maintaining an air of mystery here. Her friends insist that Sandra's been to Berlin. And when one of them asked her this week: "Is it true that you married Von Epp?" she replied: "You got the name wrong. It was Hitler." . . . Mayor LaGuardia will designate Eddie Cantor and George M. Cohan as the typical Americans of New York—for "I Am An American" Day, May 18 . . . Don Nelson, the $1-a-year Defense Commissioner, has been paying all the expenses that job involves out of his own funds . . . Huntington Hartford, the A. & P. heir, went to a party in Long Island last week. At midnight, when the host confessed that there was no more food left, he and Hartford decided to drive to the nearest town and purchase supplies . . . They discovered that all the grocery stores were closed at that hour—even the A. & P. . . "You should have a key for this store," Hartford was told . . . "I would," he answered, "if I could find a way of carrying 16,000 keys."

EDDIE CANTOR

NBC WILL LAUNCH its newest hopeful this week—Jean Cavell, a French-Canadian singer . . . Sinclair Lewis has booked a series of debates for the fall . . . Zoe Akins' new play, "The Happy Days," which Rafael Kakim is producing, will be made into a movie in the East—with Zoe writing the screen play and Kakim as producer . . . During the recent debate in the House of Representatives on a bill to provide for a test black-out of Washington, Cong. Hamilton Fish offered an amendment—before the bill was defeated . . . The amendment would have provided appropriations for clothing Representatives and Senators with asbestos suits. Fish, who has no affection for Frances Perkins, also requested an appropriation for sandbags to be placed around the Capitol and the White House and anti-aircraft guns on top of all public buildings in Washington—except the offices of the Department of Labor.

THE CHINESE DAILY, Ta Kung Pao—which moved its publication headquarters every time Chiang Kai-shek moved the capital to a different city—will receive the gold medal awarded each year by the University of Missouri's School of Journalism . . . At Melvyn Douglas' cocktail party for Eleanor Roosevelt last week, screenwriters Charles and Lis Brackett found themselves the only Republicans among the army of Democrats present. "Now you know," the Bracketts were told, "how those unconvoyed ships must feel when they're surrounded by U-boats" . . . Hazel Scott of Uptown Cafe Society was rehearsing some of her piano swing solos in an upstairs room at Carnegie Hall . . . While Hazel was at work upon her swing version of Bach she noticed a man, who wore no jacket and had his sleeves rolled up, watching her from the open doorway . . . Hazel reached into her purse and told him: "Would you mind running down to the drug store and bringing me a soda?" . . . "I'd do it—except that I just finished rehearsing my orchestra and I'm a little tired," the conductor replied. "I'm John Barbirolli."

AT BEN MARDEN'S Rivera last season Harry Richman, Sophie Tucker and Joe E. Lewis sang a song called "Let's Give the Youngsters a Chance." That will be the theme of Marden's new show this year—and he's employing youngsters only . . . The Lincoln (Neb.) Symphony Orchestra is negotiating for the services of Artie Shaw . . . A revolt is brewing in the New York Psychoanalytic Society—because one of the distinguished members was deprived of her teaching privileges . . . Jimmy Young is becoming a lecture platform star, now that his first book, "Behind the Rising Sun," is so successful . . . Donald Ogden Stewart—who appeared on "Information Please"—will use his fee to buy something he's always wanted, the Encyclopedia Britannica.

A METAL WHISTLE, purchased at a 5 & 10, was the sole instrument in a recent concerto over WNYC. The composition was Henry Brant's "Grand Concerto for a Ten Cent Whistle" . . . The police reporters covered Friday night's premiere of three strip-teasers at the swank Fefe's Monte Carlo, because they expected a raid—which never materialized . . . Jean Muir will direct plays at the summer theater in Suffern.

LISTEN, WORLD!

by ELSIE ROBINSON

A LITTLE MAN died the other night. In himself, he was not impressive—and had no wish to be. Yet his voice had wrung out over America as few voices have ever wrung. And he had left his indelible impression on millions of young hearts and many an old one.

Yes, you've guessed it—that little man was the glorious, campaigning voice behind "Hi-Yo, Silver!" . . . the cry of "The Lone Ranger."

How often you've grinned as the youngsters gathered round when his nightly broadcast came . . . and how often you've joined that gathering yourself.

Chances are there was nothing finer in all your life than that impulse to listen in while The Lone Ranger did his stuff. For that "stuff" carried on all that was best and bravest in yourself.

THE NATION MOURNED when The Lone Ranger went his way; but it didn't mourn for glamour or gaiety or even for adventure. It mourned for something that has become all too rare in these desolate days—for the symbol of gallantry.

There went a voice that did not call to a silvery horse alone, but one that roused fighting fineness in each one that listened—child or woman or man.

We've forgotten the fineness in ourselves, we moderns. Our present social system has laid the emphasis on smartness rather than sincerity, on glamour rather than grit.

We're trained to show and expect a flash front rather than solid virtues.

Yet back of that shallow glamour and that false front "The Lone Ranger" still rides! Still we long to leave our petty programs and hurl ourselves into the great and generous adventures.

We have not greatly changed, we Americans, despite our amazing record. They were "Lone Rangers," once—all of those who gathered on that "rock-bound shore." They were in search of something more than pleasure and profit; for these they could have had for the asking in the lands they had left behind.

But they were not enough to make life glorious. Deep in each heart there stirred a longing for wider living . . . deep in each spirit there ran the impulse of that call—"Hi-Yo, Silver!"

THE WORLD SEES our complacent, conventional exterior, our timid conformances and compromises.

But, in our hearts, the great horse Silver rides and we feel the thunder of his hoofs . . . and the gallant urge that sends him on some mission of mercy.

So the voice of a little man most of us never saw carried that great cry on.

And today every youngster in America is the better for hearing it.

MY DAY

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

SEATTLE, Wash., Monday—About 10 colleges and universities of the International Student Service were represented here yesterday at luncheon and stayed with us until nearly 4 o'clock. They agreed that they wished to have a further discussion in preparation for some kind of work next winter. Everyone present felt that greater clarification of the problems of today, through discussion, is one of the needs of the campuses.

We all talked to the President on the telephone Saturday night; even the youngest member of the family managed to say "Hello, Grandpa," and to be really understood.

We went across the lake yesterday on the floating concrete bridge, which always seems to me the most extraordinary engineering feat. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Donogh, whom we have visited, have a charming house with a lovely view of the water.

Mr. Donogh enjoys really good food. He has arranged a charcoal burner for his own use, and we were given the best steaks I have eaten in many a long day. They showed us the outside grill where they cook and eat during the summer months. I think they look upon this indoor one as a mere makeshift which makes the winter months possible.

WE CAME HOME fairly early and took Miss Thompson to her train for Chicago. If all goes well I shall reach Chicago an hour before she does. I take it for granted that all will go well, for I have been so fortunate on my last few trips by air. It won't prevent me, however, from saying a little prayer to the weather man.

Everyone asks me out here if I don't prefer this climate to that in the East, and I must say it has many advantages. I have said before that this northwestern coast is very like the coast I know so well on the northeastern shore of our continent, and quite agree with my children and grandchildren that this is a grand place in which to live. The West is a young man's country, and there is a spirit of freedom in the air, but I am afraid that I am too old to change in my loyalty to my own home on the Hudson River.

CAROL BRUCE SIGNED FOR TONE FILM

By Louella O. Parsons

Carol Bruce

HOLLYWOOD, May 6—Carol Bruce's visit to right out was to make a test for Frank Lloyd. The tests were so satisfactory that Carol leaves "Louisiana Purchase" and comes here in a few days to play the only feminine role in "I, James Lewis," Frank's next picture. The story of the little Bruce girl on Broadway is one of the stories we all enjoy because it is reminiscent of the days when unknowns had a chance on the stage. Although Carol didn't have the lead, she was so colorful and so attractive that she has had reams of publicity.

Universal, on the strength of that publicity, signed her some time ago but nothing was done until she was tested for the Lloyd picture.

Now you'll see her with Franchot Tone, Walter Brennan and other big names and it she gives to the movies what she gave to the stage—a new movie star will grace the Hollywood horizon.

I HAVE OFTEN wondered why Elizabeth Bergner, who was one of the greatest foreign stars before the war, hasn't made a picture since she came to Hollywood. She has lived here quietly with her husband and we have heard nothing about her since she arrived, a refugee from Germany where she was UFA's biggest feminine star. So it's very interesting, at least to this writer, to hear there is a strong possibility she will play the role of Mrs. Skeffington in the widely read "Mr. Skeffington" for Warners. Both Tallulah Bankhead and Gloria Swanson were discussed for the role. It was so difficult to get the right star that Warners were almost on the point of postponing the picture.

JERRY COLONNA, for my money, stands alone as a comedian. He is distinctive and he is so funny. Both on the screen and the radio, that I shall be surprised indeed if he doesn't make a big name for himself before the end of the year. He will have the lead in "Ice-episodes," for Republic and it is plenty smart to get his name on the dotted line for Jerry was a great addition to "Sis Hopkins" and gave it a real comedy flavor. Judy Canova, the star of the picture, who is a Colonna fan, says it's such fun working with Jerry. He has such a wonderful disposition and he always has a topper to any bit of nonsense.

IT SHOULD WARM the heart of everyone connected with the theatrical world to learn that Secretary of State Cordell Hull has accepted the invitation of the Variety Clubs to attend their convention in Atlanta, May 15, 16 and 17. In addition, Cliff Lewis, in charge of the Hollywood activities, tells me Ray Milland, Dorothy Lamour, Errol Flynn, John Payne and Walter Wanger will fly there.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Wayne Morris, whose divorce from Bubbles Schinaal, becomes final in September, has already put an engagement ring on Pat Stewart's finger; looks as if Cupid will be busy this year. Not only have Alice Faye and Phil Harris admitted their engagement but Alice is also wearing a ring on the proper finger; 'tis said also that Priscilla Lane has chosen July for her marriage to the newspaper publisher, John Barry; George Jessel and Lois Andrews are back in town and will be here for several months; Deanna Durbin and Vaughn Paul are living at the Beverly Wilshire until their house is ready.

THE BEST SHOW Hollywood has seen in a long time was the burlesque edition put on at the red, white and blue ball. Proceeds went to Ann Lehr's Hollywood Guild and she should be very happy for no affair has brought out so many important celebrities. Connie Bennett and Gilbert Roland, who were in the show, gave a dinner party at which the Darryl Zanucks, Jean Bennett, Walter Wanger, Norma Shearer, Sylvia Fairbanks and others were guests. The cutest pair were Bonita Granville and Jackie Cooper who danced every dance together.

LOUELLA PARSONS, famed internationally circulated Hearst motion picture columnist, will be heard locally over station WEEI every Friday between 10 and 10:30 p. m.

JEAN GABIN BOOSTS HIS FILM FAME IN CIVIC REPERTORY'S 'PEPE LE MOKO'

Threat to Screen Glamour-Boys

By PEGGY DOYLE

Jean Gabin is anything but tall, dark and draftee yet, until the outbreak of the war, he was the unchallenged box-office champion of France.

With production at a standstill in his own country, Gabin, who had been resisting fantastic Hollywood offers, finally nibbled on one 20th Century-Fox threw out and is now in Hollywood where he will soon begin work in "Moon Tide" with his off-screen romance, Ginger Rogers, as a probable costar.

Right now, Gabin, who has become quite a cult with discriminating American audiences as a result of his brilliant performance in "Grand Illusion" and other fine French films, may be seen on the Civic Repertory screen in "Pepe Le Moko" (which freely translates "nomad," "wanderer").

If you have yet to make Gabin's screen acquaintance, you'll probably be making up for that lapse but soon in self-defense. For last night's premiere should unleash a virtual babel of raves for this screen masterpiece.

Even that controlled New Englander, Katharine Hepburn, thinks Gabin is terrific. Stocky, strong-featured, carelessly groomed, his hair silvery-gray and not the platinum-blond it appears to be on the screen, this Charles Boyer in reverse is the biggest threat the Hollywood glamour-boys have experienced to date.

His Pepe, is a social outcast, a Parisian gentleman burglar who flees the gendarmes and hides out in the Carbah, underworld citadel of Algiers.

His technique with the strange Gaby, former gamine of Paris who is slumming in the Casbah, has the same quality of surprise provoked by his solid, no-nonsense about him appearance in contrast to his brooding brunet personality. It should give the boys ideas, and yet it might turn out to be a caricature in inept hands.

Of course, if this has not already been made crystal-clear, this is not one for the little folks. But it most certainly is "must" entertainment for those who value the Gallic tradition that earmarks this distinguished, realistic film.

A NEW SCREEN TEAM makes its appearance at the Metropolitan on Thursday when Joel McCrea and Ellen Drew appear as the stars of Paramount's new comedy, "Reaching for the Sun."

He's got a nervous trigger finger... It's BILLY THE KID An M-G-M Picture COMING SOON!

Joel McCrea-Ellen Drew Comedy at Met Thursday

Bringing together for the first time Joel McCrea and Ellen Drew as a romantic starring team, Paramount's new comedy, "Reaching for the Sun," arrives at the Metropolitan Theater on Thursday.

A tale of the adventures and comic misadventures of a Michigan backwoodsman on the assembly line of a Detroit automobile plant, and his romance with a lunch-wagon waitress, who sometimes doubles as a dance-hall hostess, the new film was produced and directed by William A. Wellman, who has earned a reputation for his skill in blending comedy with exciting drama.

In "Reaching for the Sun," McCrea comes to the Detroit auto factories to earn enough money to buy an outboard motor. Life, for him, would be complete, if he only had that motor. When he meets Ellen Drew, a lunch-wagon waitress, he marries her, but keeps a large soft spot in his heart for his beloved motor. Ellen's jealousy is aroused by this division of her husband's affections, and naturally, she sets about eliminating her rival.

McCrea, too, has a rival in his love for Ellen. This competitor is Albert Dekker.

The second feature, "Power Drive," features Richard Arlen and Jean Parker in a story based on man's alleged latest conquest of the air, the new "geodetic-plastic" plane.

ALL THE JAUNTINESS went out of John when he saw the expression on Una Carlson's face as she came out of the house. At sight of him, determination gave way to a dark ominousness. When he asked, "Going out, Una?" her voice went icy as she said, "Obviously, I have a date."

He protested mildly, "I thought the date was with me; we've gone out together every Saturday night for the past three years."

"All but the past two Saturdays," she said, pointedly. "You weren't around."

"I wired you I was in Chicago."

"And that was all. No letters—nothing!"

He forced a smile. "I wanted to surprise you."

She said, tartly, "I'll surprise you instead. I'm going to be married." She eyed him expectantly, but all he did was blink once and then survey her calmly through mild brown eyes. She asked, impatiently, "Well, aren't you surprised? Aren't you going to say anything?"

"Sure. Congratulations. But I'm not surprised." Her eyebrows went up. He went on, "I've been expecting something like this—from your actions during the last few months. You were restless, getting discontented at the thought of settling down with me. I've been waiting for you to blow off some steam."

Her lips tightened angrily and her eyes went to the bulge in his inside pocket. She reached over and took the slide rule from its place, holding it up between thumb and forefinger, as though it were something distasteful. She shook the rule and said acidly, "No doubt you came to that conclusion with the help of this?"

He shrugged faintly. "It helped. It's a handy little thing. You can't go far wrong with it."

"Yes, you can," she snapped. "You did. It's this slide rule that's come between us; I refuse to marry one."

"An engineer can't be without one," John said, but the words goaded her to fury:

"An engineer! Fine engineer you are! Sitting at a desk all day, regulating your life with a slide rule. But you won't do it to mine. I want something more out of life than a slide rule can give me."

A GOOD LOSER

"Somebody has to do the desk work," he offered.

"That's always been your excuse for living a drab, little life," she flared. "Even your name—John Smith. There are thousands of you. I won't marry a smug little clerk whose world is bounded by the edges of his desk, who finds his only amusement in memorizing statistics. Which reminds me," she added, when he failed to reply, "You haven't quoted any yet."

"I don't feel in a statistical mood." He took back the slide rule and asked, "Going to meet your fiancé now?"

"Yes," she said defiantly. "I meet him away from home because my parents don't like him, even though father is doing some business with him. Surprise you?"

"Still no surprise," he said, pocketing the rule and taking her arm. "I knew you wouldn't do things by halves. I'd like to meet him, if I may; make my congratulations in the form of a little party for you. I won't be around for the wedding, you see; I'm leaving tomorrow."

She was silent for a moment. Then she said in a low voice, "Perhaps you won't like Joe any better than Father did."

He grinned suddenly. "Not at all. I've a pretty good idea of what Joe's like. The good old slide rule again. Sorry to mention it, but it's true. People run true to pattern, just like mathematical tables. Since you're so displeased with me, Joe must be almost a direct opposite. For example, I'm fairly small and wear quiet clothes; so Joe's probably a big fellow and goes in for checked suits and red ties."

Una bristled. "If you're going to—"

"No offense meant," he said hastily. "I was just trying to demonstrate how efficient a slide rule can be."

"Well, don't," she said.

But she winced when they met Joe Kendall. John had practically described him, except that Joe wore a wide plaid instead of checks. But his tie and socks were contract. According to these figures, you're providing too much sand and not enough cement for that new school building. What does Mr. Carlson say about that?"

Joe wiped the back of his hand across his mouth and grinned wisely. "He don't know. An' by the time he finds out," he added owlishly, with a complacent look at Una, "he won't wanna hurt his own son-in-law, now would he?"

Horror came into Una's eyes when John answered, "Probably not, even though it means he'll probably go to prison when that school building's walls collapse. As head of the building board, he'll be blamed for it."

Una kept staring at Joe in horrified fascination while she said in a strained whisper, "John. Take me anything particularly wonderful about my advance knowledge of Joe."

"I met your father in Chicago. He was worried about that materials contract with Joe, didn't trust the man, even though his bid was the lowest. It needed an engineer who could catch Joe off his guard and get at the truth." He paused and shrugged. "It was easy enough to get Joe drunk. The slide rule did the rest. It had to work out that way."

When she turned to him, all her shame had become anger. She said, bitterly, "Of course, it had to work out that way. But it won't work out completely as you expected. You used me for your scheme, even though you've saved my father. I can't forgive that—that or the thought in the back of your head that this would probably throw me right back into your arms. That's what you thought, wasn't it?"

"I could hope," he said, his voice so low she scarcely could hear the words. He added slowly, "But I had to tell you, I couldn't lie to you, let you think a lie, any more than I could let you marry a thief."

Suddenly, he pulled the slide rule out of his pocket again and stared at it. With a short laugh, he opened the window and tossed the rule into the street.

Una asked, "What's the idea of that?"

He said shortly, "I like to get rid of anything I've just taken away the thing I wanted most."

He sank back in his seat and stared out of the window in gloomy silence. Only the ticking of the meter and the faint sounds of traffic intruded.

Una stood it for as long as she could, then asked, "Why don't you say something?"

John smiled faintly and began to recite: "The population of Peru according to the 1936 census, was six and a half million. Its capital is Lima, with a population of 281,435."

Una sighed, "Can't you say something sensible?"

"That makes sense," he told her. "And it's the last statistics you'll hear from me. I'm leaving for Peru tomorrow. That's why I want to Chicago, there's a company there that gave me a job. They need some bridges down in Peru—and I'd like to build 'em. I'm sick of sitting at a desk! His smile was crooked as he added, "So I won't be seeing you."

Una smiled back and shook her head sadly. "It's a shame," she said, "how lost you are without that slide rule." He turned a puzzled face to her. She smiled again and said her arm about his neck. "You can't see what's right under your nose... can't you see I'm just dying to learn more about Peru?"

red. So was his face and his small eyes regarded John with amused contempt when Una made the introductions. She was uncomfortable.

AN ACCURATE GUESS

The discomfort grew when they slid into a booth at the Britanny and the waiter came to take their order. Joe said, "I'll have whiskey," and John told the waiter, "Red Crow for the gentleman."

Joe said, "Say! How'd you know what I drink?"

John grinned tightly and gave the rest of the order. Joe generously allowed him the first dance with Una, but was less generous from then on. He kept drinking steadily all through dinner despite Una's protests.

"I can keep drinkin' this stuff all night," he told her. His voice was disconcertingly loud.

John said mildly, "It's pretty potent. You've had a half dozen already. You ought to take it easy."

"Oh, countin' my drinks, huh?" Joe demanded. "Well, if that's the kind of a host you are, I'll buy 'n' own. — I can afford 'em, with the way I'm goin' now."

John tried to soothe him by ordering another drink for him, but he flashed Una a warning look out of the corner of his eye. She caught the signal and retired hastily to the powder room. She fast as though the eyes of everybody at the place were on her, each of them a separate, reproaching stab.

She forgot her embarrassment when she returned to the table. John had the slide rule out and was talking quietly. She heard him saying to Joe, "—no wonder you're making so much money out of this home—please—right away!"

John tossed a bill on the table and rose. Joe, scowling, started to rise, too.

"You can't walk out on me like this," he snarled to Una. "You can't."

"Yes, she can," John broke in. He placed his fingertips against Joe's chest and pushed gently. Joe slid back into his seat, glaring. John said, "Better stay there, Joe, you've done enough talking for one day."

The last thing Una saw through sudden tears as she turned to go, was realization dawning in Joe's glazed eyes.

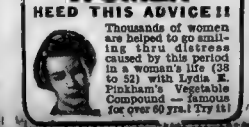

In the taxi, her storm of sobbing passed quickly, turning to anger at sight of John idly fingering the slide rule.

"Throw that thing away!" she cried. "Hasn't it done enough harm? Or are you getting ready to say you told me so?"

JOHN EXPLAINS

John put it in his pocket, saying quietly, "You'll admit it's done some good." He took a long breath and said, "But it isn't the magic thing you think it is. I—I have a confession to make, Una. There wasn't

1st Middlesex Farm Law Owner Named

LOWELL, May 6.—Supervisor Cloyes T. Gleason of the local Farm Security Administration office today announced Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Schaefer of Littleton as the first family in Middlesex County to become farm owners under the terms of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act.

Chosen from scores of applicants, the Schaefers late yesterday purchased the Collier farm in Grotton from Edmund D. Collier of Somerville. The purchase was made possible by a government loan of between $7500 and $8000, to run 40 years at 3 per cent interest.

Last July, $55,000 was allotted to Middlesex and Essex counties to enable farm tenants, and farm laborers to become owners of farms.

Applications received at the local office were examined by a committee of three farmers. They were Joseph H. Decatur of Wayland, T. P. Abele of Pepperell and John Esdale of Dracut.

After the Schaefers selected a farm site which was approved by the committee, conferences were held with the farm and home management branch of the FSA and plans worked out for crops and livestock for a typical year.

The loan granted to the Schaefers covered the purchase price of the farm, repairs and alterations to the buildings and incidental expenses for initial operation.

Beaupre Drops Plea for Hearing

Request for a hearing on the State pension granted six years ago to Capt. Charles T. Beaupre of Watertown, resigned executive officer of the State police, was dropped today by his counsel.

Atty.-Gen. Robert T. Bushnell will render an opinion on the legality of the pension tomorrow afternoon without a hearing having been held.

The legality of the $2000 annual pension, granted Beaupre two years after his resignation in 1935, was questioned by State Comptroller Walter S. Morgan.

Capt. Beaupre when he resigned, had just been cleared of certain charges by a court martial board of subordinates but he was still mentioned in connection with other charges.

Boy, 3, Badly Hurt by Bike

Three-year-old John C. Barrett of Arden st., Allston, was taken in critical condition today to St. Elizabeth's Hospital today with a fractured skull and intracranial injuries, received, his mother told police, last Sunday when he was struck by a bicycle.

Police said the child's mother, Mrs. Gertrude Barrett, did not report the accident immediately because she was unaware of the seriousness of her son's injuries.

They said she told them a 17-year-old Allston youth drove his bicycle into her young son while the latter was playing on the sidewalk in front of his home.

MURDER TIP WINS TOP $50 PRIZE

An alert Pittsfield man who tipped these papers to a murder and suicide wins top prize of $5 in the weekly Record-American-Advertiser Tipster Contest.

Second prize of $3 goes to a Burlington man who photographed an auto accident in that town which took the life of a man and then brought the exclusive picture to the Record-American.

Man's Body Recovered Off North End Park

Apparently in the water for some time, the body of a man was recovered today by harbor police off North End Park, North End. No means of identification were found on the body or on the man's clothing.

The description given out by police was as follows: Five feet eight inches tall; weight 160 pounds; brown hair, partly bald; wearing a tweed suit, blue shirt, blue necktie, black socks and black shoes.

RESERVOIRS LOW

Declaring that water in storage reservoirs was considerably below normal, the State department of public health today suggested that communities with small supplies consider development of auxiliary sources.

Harvard Professor Hurt In London Raid

LONDON, May 6 (AP)—Prof. John E. Gordon, United States liaison officer with the Ministry of Health, suffered a minor scalp wound and bruises during a recent air raid on London. It was disclosed today.

Dr. Gordon, of the Harvard University faculty, told of the bombing experience he had shared with Dr. Paul V. Beson, formerly of Rockefeller Institute Hospital in New York, in a letter to Prof. F. R. Fraser, director of the British-American Medical Service.

"The blast was terrific," he wrote. "There was a veritable shower of glass. Furniture was upturned and the door of my apartment was blown off. Altogether it was a pretty good show."

"I crawled out into the hall and within a minute, certainly not longer than two minutes, one of your first aid workers, a young lady, popped in from the street. She put a towel over my bleeding head and with my colleague, Dr. Beson, proceeded with us to the nearest first-aid post."

"She deposited me with the nurse in charge, bade us good-night and was off about her business."

FATHERS PLAY BIG PART IN CAREERS OF BASEBALL SONS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 6—Fathers, it seems, play an important part in shaping the careers of their sons—especially baseball fathers. The boys had been talking about young Paul Campbell as they rode over here from Cleveland. Paul, you may recall, is the flashy little left-handed first baseman the Sox recently farmed out to Montreal.

He was a right-hander when he was a kid around Charlotte, N. C., but his father insisted he become a left-handed pitcher. Of course, the father couldn't foresee that Paul would wind up as a left-handed first baseman. Nor could he foresee that Paul would be a .280 hitter at Louisville, an average not robust enough to keep him in the majors. So Paul is doomed to minor league servitude, whereas if he had remained a right-hander and had become a shortstop or second baseman his fielding talents would offset his .280 hitting and he might be in one of several major league infields.

Paul's case reminded us of the chat we had with Lou Boudreau in Cleveland, and the opposite trend his career took by listening to the advice of his father.

Lou was a catcher in his school days, and a corker. But his father, a semi-pro player of distinction around Chicago years ago, thought his son too frail to become a major league receiver and persuaded him to shift to third base. It was a smart move, as it turned out, much smarter than Campbell's.

Not only did the elder Boudreau make Lou a third sacker but he used to take him into the Chicago Cubs' park from their native Harvey suburb and watch Pie Traynor play. Boudreau senior ranked Traynor at the top of major league third sackers when Pie was at his best, and he wasn't far wrong. Boudreau junior still extols Pie's play.

Eat, Talk and Dream Baseball

Lou was a third baseman when he attended University of Illinois a few years back, and a third baseman when the Indians snatched him from the campus in '38 and farmed him to Cedar Rapids in the Three-I League.

But when he reported at New Orleans in '39 for spring training

Streaking Cards Test Ferrell's Lucky Star

By JOE CASHMAN

A dramatic bit of baseball history will be written at Braves Field this afternoon in the third and final game of the Bees-Cards series.

Wesley Cheek Ferrell is going to the Boston box.

And he's going to do one of two things.

He's going to make good his boast that he's still as great a pitcher as he was for a decade in the American League as the ace of the Indians and Red Sox. Or he'll find his name on the list of Braves who are in danger of being released before May 15.

He doesn't necessarily have to snap the Cards' 10 game win streak and become the first pitcher to beat them in 13 road games this spring in order to qualify as a May 15 survivor.

It wouldn't be fair to make such a demand of a Paul Derringer, a Bucky Walters or a Whitlow Wyatt, the way the Redbirds are travelling right now.

Wes needs only to make a creditable showing today to stick after his feat of turning in two victories for his new mates in three previous efforts.

BET WESLEY ISN'T WORRYING

But if Wesley runs true to form, he'll either stand the Gas House gang on their collective heads or be shelled from the peak in a hurry. And in the latter event, he'll have at least a strike and a half on him in the front office at Coney.

You can bet, however, that Wesley isn't worrying about it.

On the contrary, the safest wager we can think of is that "Wes" wouldn't change the setting in the slightest if he could.

It's right down the cocky Tarheel's alley.

In fact, we wouldn't be surprised if he asked for this chance against the sizzling Cardinals.

For, if the stars call for him to win on this May 6, he's going to gain nation-wide fame as the guy who snapped the amazing dual surge of the Mound City crew.

And if it is in the skies for him to sing his big league swan song on this May matinee, he'll at least have the satisfaction of being whacked out by the best ball club in the business at this moment.

That's the way he'd prefer it to be, we're sure.

Give 'em hell—Wes.

Ferrell's mound opponent will be John Grodzicki, one of the quintet of St. Louis freshman flingers who have been burning up the league. That is, it sounded to us as though Manager Billy Southworth said Grodzicki. Maybe he said "Grodzicki."

When he reported for training

GREENBERG FINALE

Last Game For 'Hank'

DETROIT, May 6 (INS)—It'll be the last time out for at least a year for Hank Greenberg today.

The lumbering Detroit Tiger outfielder and hitting star will play against the New York Yankees this afternoon and then turn in his big league uniform for the khaki and denim of one of Uncle Sam's soldiers.

There won't be any formal ceremonies out at Briggs Stadium by way of a send-off, but there might well be some informal demonstrations.

Hank has earned that. He has been a leading factor in the three pennant years enjoyed by Detroit since he joined the club. He helped the Tigers win the only World Series victory in their history.

And he endeared himself to Detroit fans by his demonstration of team spirit last year. That was when he put his already established career in jeopardy so that the Tigers could get the benefit of the hitting power of big Rudy York.

CLICKED IN GARDEN

Hank moved out to left field so that York could play first. York came up as a first baseman. He hadn't been able to convert himself into a catcher, infielder or outfielder in Detroit. Tiger managers tried him at all those spots, because Hank looked too much like a fixture at first.

The shift worked. Hank made himself over into an outfielder and York took over first without trouble. It worked so well, in fact, that the Tigers won the American League pennant and Hank was voted the league's most valuable player.

During the year Greenberg hit .340, his highest average for a full season in the majors, blasted 41 home runs, batted in 150 runs and fielded a more than satisfactory .954.

LIFETIME AVERAGE OF .326

Greenberg played 117 games for Detroit in 1933, hitting .301 and pounding out 12 homers. Stardom came in 1934, when the Tigers won their first pennant since 1909. Hank hit .339 and clouted 26 homers. He hit 36 homers and batted .323 in 1935, another pennant year for the Tigers, and this time was voted the league's most valuable player.

His major league batting average is a neat .326. He has hit 347 major league homers and through last year batted in 1003 runs in games.

Fittingly, he passes from the big league scene temporarily in a game against the Yankees. Hank is a New York boy who has always played his best against the Yanks.

JUD MAY PLAY SOX OUTFIELD

By HERB FINNEGAN

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 5—"Thomas William Oscar Judd now playing left field for the Red Sox."

It could be. It may be before the week is out, especially if that shift to the left keeps blocking our outfielders out of the play.

Time was when that comic character, "Bonehead Barry" was considered typical of the major league outfielder—good hit, no field and dumb. Smead Jolly, Babe Herman and Ike Boone were the modern versions. But all were durable as Battling Nelsons, always being hit on the head with fly balls, or on the shins with line drives, but they never miss an inning.

How different today. Look at the way injuries have wrecked the Sox outfield. Last year DiMaggio was out for months with a serious ankle hurt. Later, Finney came up with a bad ankle.

This year, Lowell's Johnny Barrett (apprenticed to Hollywood) started it off with a bone bruise on his heel which kept him idle for a week at Sarasota.

PETE FOX HOME

Followed Ted Williams' ankle injury when he fell into a gully near the left field fence at Sarasota. After his return to the game (March 19) he suffered an injury to the same ankle, sliding into second base against Newark which kept him on the shelf until recently.

Even before he got back into the game, Pete Fox was laid low by an ulcerated tooth which has kept him idle since April 21 and which will keep him idle until the Sox return home.

Pete today was at his Evansville, Indiana home where he could visit his own dental surgeon.

To climax it all, Dom DiMaggio is suffering from a sprained right wrist which this morning, Dom admitted the wrist was exceptionally sore. He couldn't bend it backwards at all, and how he ever could hit or throw a ball was a mystery.

If the wrist was strapped tightly, it would lose its flexibility. Chances were that Spence would be in center, Finney in left field and Williams in right when the Sox started their final game with the Browns here this afternoon at 3 p. m. Boston time. But what if one gets hurt?

LOOKS LIKE JUD

It was a 10-1 shot that DiMaggio wouldn't be in the lineup against the Browns today. Before he left to visit Dr. Hyland at St. Louis Club physician this morning, Dom admitted the wrist was exceptionally sore. He couldn't bend it backwards at all, and how he ever could hit or throw a ball was a mystery. If the wrist was strapped tightly, it would lose its flexibility. Chances were that Spence would be in center, Finney in left field and Williams in right when the Sox started their final game with the Browns here this afternoon at 3 p. m. Boston time. But what if one gets hurt?

Sammy Hale can hit but he can't scale a plate across the kitchen. Tommy Carey and Skeeter Newsome are out of the question. Yes, Judd is the man.

Thomas William Oscar Judd has done a lot of outfielding in his thirty years on this planet. Only two years ago he pitched and played the outfield for Decatur and led the Three I League in batting with .419.

REFUSED TO SHIFT

Last year he did most of the pinch hitting for the Sacramento Club of the Coast League when he wasn't busy pitching and winning 22 games.

Judd is the boy we told you about who made three triples and a homer one day Branch Rucker was watching him pitch and put himself in the Cardinal doghouse when he wouldn't switch from the mound to the outfield. Juddie this year has pinch hit a home run against Holy Cross and last week in Cleveland led off a three-run sixth inning with a double to right center.

Strangely on two other brief appearances on the Sox mound, he was taken out for a pinch hitter, but he doesn't feel badly about it.

"Wasn't I reading somewhere that Duffy Lewis once latted for Ruth?" he laughed.

Yes, Juddie can hit, and pitch, too. Watch him in the double header season.

Earl Johnson against Johnny Allen in today's final here, Charlie Wagner and Dick Newsome against the White Sox in Chicago Wednesday and Thursday. . . . The Sox leave for the Windy City immediately after today's game. . . . Hope Johnson works faster than he did in Detroit, or the boys will be bitch-hiking over.

ONLY 'SURE THING'

Feller Goal 30 Victories

By LAWTON CARVER

International News Service Sports Editor

There he is, stop him if you can—rapid Robert Feller of the Cleveland Indians, winner of five games and with that the leading pitcher in the major leagues as of today.

Some of us predicted at the beginning of this season that Feller would win 30 games and from the way he has been going so far there has been nothing to indicate that we were wrong. He should win 30, and may win more. Don't forget he scored 21 victories last season.

In beating the Washington Senators by 2 to 1 yesterday, Feller allowed only three hits, struck out 12 and walked seven. In the pinches he made up for the bases on balls by tightening down and got the Senators couldn't even get started.

ONLY "BEST BET"

Of all the pitchers in the game today he stands out as the only one on whom you can safely bet to win every time he goes to the mound. If he loses once, you still can feel certain that he will come back the next time.

His pitching has nudged the Indians up into first place ahead of the second place New York Yankees and the third place Chicago White Sox.

The Yankees yesterday blew their game with the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 3, by virtue of a Tigers five-run rally in the third. The Philadelphia Athletics downed the White Sox, 5 to 4, in 11 innings when Pitcher Lester McCrabe singled the winning run home.

CARDS SET PACE

Boston at St. Louis was rained out in the American League along with Pittsburgh at Brooklyn, Chicago at New York and Cincinnati at Philadelphia in the National.

In the one game in the national circuit, Ernie White a rookie left-hander, hurled five-hit ball to turn back the Boston Braves, 5 to 1, for the St. Louis Cardinals' 10th straight triumph.

With that, the Cardinals continued to set the National League pace ahead of the second-place Dodgers and the third-place Giants.

Typo Nine Opens Sunday

The 1941 edition of the Boston Types will "go to press" next Sunday against St. Lazarus Club at Noyes Park, Orient Heights, to open a campaign which they hope will culminate in the championship of the Union Printers' International Baseball League at Indianapolis the week of July 26.

Answering the call for a practice session on the Common were 15 likely-looking candidates for the squad which will make the tour to Indianapolis in quest of the Garry Hermann cup.

DODGERS BUY HERMAN FROM CUBS

NEW YORK, May 4 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs announced early today they had traded Second Baseman Billy Herman to the Brooklyn Dodgers for Outfielder Charley Gilbert and an undisclosed sum of cash.

The Cubs also announced they purchased Infielder Johnny Hudson from the Montreal Royals of the International League for $25,000.

Gilbert started the season with the Dodgers but was sent to Montreal, a Dodgers farm, two weeks ago.

Announcement of the deal was made by James Gallagher, general manager of the Cubs.

Herman, 31, has been one of the stars of the Cubs for the past 10 years, coming up in 1931 from Louisville of the American Association. He broke into baseball in 1928 with Vicksburg.

Last year he hit .292 in 135 games. His best year was 1935 when he hit .341. He holds the National League record for most putouts by a second baseman in a season—466 which he made in 1933.

Hudson, whom the Cubs purchased in a cash transaction with Montreal, was with Brooklyn for the past four seasons, and was sent to Montreal during the spring training season this year. His best year with the Dodgers was 1938 when he hit .281 in 135 games. Last year he hit .217 in 85 games.

Gilbert played in 87 games with the Dodgers last season and batted .246. The Dodgers purchased him from Nashville of the Southern Association, where he hit .317 in 1939.

DOUBLE AIDS N. Y. HANDLE $313,840

Whether the week's experiment with "daily double" betting at Jamaica was a financial success will be decided only after a thorough study and analysis of the figures by the racing commission, but the first indications look pretty good.

The total mutual "handle" for the week ending last Saturday was $4,747,908. That was an increase of $313,840 over the preceding week although the attendance of 19,288 didn't show much change.

Trainer "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons sent his Peckham candidate, King Cole, a mile in an impressive workout Sunday and probably will give him another trial tomorrow. The colt's fractional times were 23-5-5, 48-4-5, 1:16-2-5 and 1:44-2-5.

The Millside Stable's Kansas also went through a notable workout Sunday, covering a mile in 1:39-2-5 and nine furlongs in 1:53-2-5.

He is due to start in today's Survivor Stakes at Pimlico and Owner-Trainer Anthony Pelletieri may be on hand to determine his status as a Peckham starter.

What Whirlaway started Saturday, his stablemates carried on yesterday at Churchill Downs. Two of them, Early 'N' Smart and Queen Es won their races for Owner Warren Wright, the latter taking the best race on an off day card by four lengths from Jim Pat, to pay $9.80 for $2.

The Terrier baseball, football and tennis teams are carded for competition. If that isn't enough a couple of track events are also offered.

The Terrier nine meets a rapidly improving Boston College team in the final game of a home and home series. Boston College won the first clash, 7-6, last week at Alumni Field.

Pat Hanley's impressive grid squad closes its spring practice campaign with a "game" against the Providence College squad coached by Notre Dame Hugh DeVore.

Track events listed include the Bacon mile and an intra-fraternity relay race. These events are open only to students of Boston University.

A tennis match between Boston University and Boston College racquet wielders starts the athletic program at 1:15. The football game will begin 15 minutes later at 1:30. The track events will be run off between the halves of the grid clash. The baseball game will close the program starting at 3:30.

Coach Mel Collard will use either Bill Demeritt or Carl Braun on the B. U. mound.

TOUGH SECOND TIME
DeMerritt pitched nine-inning ball in losing to the Eagles last week but is usually much more effective the second time he meets an opponent. Earlier this year Bill lost an extra inning clash to Harvard. The second time out DeMerritt had little or no trouble with the Johnnies.

After his Eagles had defeated St. Johns of Brooklyn at Alumni Field last Saturday Coach Fred Maguire announced that Ronnie Corbett, fast balling junior from Revere, would probably start on the mound against B. U.

Johnny Yaucoos, huge football tackle, is an outside possibility for starting bill duty.

Corbett and Yaucoos have yet to taste "game" action this season. Both have previous varsity experience, however.

25,000 TO SEE SERVICE MEN BOX EACH WEEK

AGENTS FOR THE War Department in the Boston area have turned to Park Commr. William P. Long and his assistant, Billy Mullen, for aid in setting up a suitable athletic program for service men. Under Commr. Long the Boston Park Department has the best system for mass athletics of any city in the United States.

COMM. W. P. LONG

Park Commr. Long, after talking over the matter with leading Army and Navy officials, has delegated Billy Mullen to work out a program. Mullen has been active in arranging baseball, boxing, basketball, football, track, roller skating and other sports schedules for Boston's large playground and park system.

"Once Commr. Long told me what was wanted for the service men," said Mullen. "I sent a group of our instructors to various harbor forts, to the Charlestown Navy yard and to the other service units in this area. I am anxious to find out just what facilities there are for sports on Army and Navy property, and how many men there will be who will wish to participate in athletics."

"Most Army and Navy men are novice athletes, and for them to get the most benefit out of sports it is better to arrange novice competition. One then attracts the masses of our service men rather than a small, restricted group."

"In the last war, they had a ball club at the Charlestown Navy yard that had among its members Jack Barry, Rabbit Maraville and numerous other big league players. Such teams are good for general entertainment, but they certainly do not help large numbers of youngsters to compete in sports."

"For Army and Navy athletics to be helpful we must get a large percentage of the men at a particular camp or station to compete in them. This is what we have tried to do with our Park Department leagues. We have leagues for all ages, and the result is we keep developing a healthy interest in sports."

Service Boxing Bouts at So. Boston Stadium
MULLEN REVEALED that he is planning Saturday night amateur boxing bouts for service men at the Municipal Stadium in South Boston.

"Boxing will have an important part in our athletic program for service men," declared Mullen. "One of our most important promotions will be a monster amateur boxing tournament each Saturday night at the Municipal Stadium in South Boston. It will be possible to care for 25,000 spectators at these matches."

"Soldiers and sailors always have liked boxing. Didn't Gene Tunney, Jack Sharkey, Dick Finnegan, Bob Martin, Bob Roper and Ernie Schaaf come out of Army and Navy tournaments?"

"We shall have novice bouts at first, and maybe later on there will be novice and open classes."

"When one has bouts between boxers of about equal ability nobody is going to get hurt too badly. We shall use 10-ounce gloves, have proper medical inspection, and capable officials."

"At our Park Department novice bouts we have always stopped the action when a contest became one-sided. The spectators soon realized we did not wish one-sided bouts and that we were eager to protect the health of the boxers."

"We shall do the same thing in our service bouts. Once a boxer is hopelessly beaten the referee will be under instructions to halt the contest."

"There will not be an admission charge for these bouts and this will give thousands of service men an opportunity to have healthy recreation while they watch their buddies toss punches."

"Boxing helps build the body, and is one of the most beneficial forms of exercise for service men."

Will Furnish Ball Clubs Proper Fields

PARK COMM. LONG has made arrangements to turn over a number of baseball diamonds to service teams. This will enable Army and Navy teams to play many of their games in this city.

The Park Department will also, where necessary, give the teams equipment and also have their games officiated by experienced umpires.

During the past 10 years the Park Department has added to its list of instructors many former college and school stars. These experienced athletes help in the arrangement of programs and at times officiate.

Army and Navy teams will now benefit from this excellent setup.

It is likely that several track meets will be arranged for service men. It has been found that track sports appeal particularly to the younger men who are able to stand the rigors of hard training.

In Army and Navy groups men weighing under 170 pounds have been able to get into fair condition after a few months of training. Men over 170 pounds have been a physical problem. Most of them are soft and slow and have not responded well to the training grind of the Army and Navy. It is expected that diet as well as long hours of drill will do much for the physical condition of this group.

The Boston Park Department plan will arrange softball contests for the older and heavier men. There is quite a boom in softball at local parks and playgrounds. Many former college and school greats, now in their thirties or forties, have turned to softball. They find it gives them needed exercise without requiring the speed and endurance of regular baseball or track sports.

New Hampshire Forest Ban To Continue

CONCORD, N. H., May 6 (AP)—The ban on forest lands in New Hampshire will continue despite protests of fishermen who have been unable to angle for brook trout since the first of the month.

The forestry department said today less than half an inch of rain had fallen since the ban went into effect.

Patrols still are on duty at the scene of serious forest fires at Marlow and Harrisville, the department added.

Hogan Enters Goodall Golf

One of the first major incidents of the golf season will be the defense of the Goodall round robin title in the fourth $5000 tournament of the Fresh Meadow Country Club course on May 22 to 25.

Defender Ben Hogan, pro at Hershey, today was the recipient of the fourth invitation from the tournament committee, Elmer Ward, president of the Goodall Golf Club, announced. Eleven more professionals, top money winners, are yet to be selected.

The 28-year-old former Century Country Club professional has been a model of rhythm and power off the tee for a number of years.

Weighing only 138 pounds, the former Texan is forced to put every ounce he possesses on the nose of the ball to keep space of the longest hitters today. His average drive is about 240 yards.

STARS NAMED FOR HUB CAPS

The nominations of Charles S. Howard's Midland for the $50,000 added Massachusetts Handicap July 16, and of his Porter's Cap for the $25,000 Yankee Handicap July 18, were included among 49 additional nominations received at Suffolk Downs, which have swelled the total of stakes nominations to the new record high of 573.

Nominations closed by mail at midnight May 1 for the Suffolk meeting which opens Monday.

There have been 50 nominations for the Massachusetts Handicap. These are Eight Thirty, Midland, Fenelon, Whirlaway, Blue Pair, Curious Coin, Attention, The Fine, Bay View, New World, Dispose, Phoenix, Old Joe, Olympian, Bender, Foxborough, and Basful Duck.

Bold Irishman Works Preakness Trial Today

BALTIMORE, Md., May 6 (AP)—Bold Irishman, the colt some folks consider an ace-in-the-hole that might upset Whirlaway's grand-slam bid for three-year-old honors, gets a chance to show whether he's ready to match strides in the Preakness with the Kentucky Derby winner.

Bold Irishman was scheduled for a trial spin in the Survivor Stakes at Pimlico in his first start of the year, an event sharing interest with Whirlaway's arrival from Kentucky to meet an engagement Saturday in the $50,000 added Preakness Stakes.

Seven other three-year-olds, including five Preakness eligibles, were entered in the 1 1/16-mile Survivor, but only the "Sunny Jim" Flaximmons trained "Irishman" from the Wheatley Stable was regarded as a real threat to Warren Wright's Kentucky speedster.

ALL ACCOUNTED FOR

"Mr. Fitz" and his assistant, George (Fish) Tappen, were reported to have Bold Irishman tuned up for a good effort. The Sir Gallahad colt, conqueror of Whirlaway last November in the Pimlico Futurity, didn't go in the Derby because of a slight injury, but has been working well.

Other Preakness candidates in the Survivor were Ella Bryson's Cavalier, Hal Price Headley's Alaking, Milledale, Stable's Kansas, Crispin Ogilby's Ocean Blue and Bold Irishman's stablemate, Choppy Sea. Cis Marion and Ice Water completed the field.

Whirlaway's arrival was about all that was necessary to complete the Preakness colony. C. S. Howard's Porter's Cap, Woodvale Farm's Our Boots and King Ranch's Dispose got in yesterday. Our Boots wore a bandage on his injured left foreleg.

Non-Derby starters besides Bold Irishman that were regarded as Preakness possibilities included his stablemate, King Cole; Goldstream Stable's Curious Coin, and Parker Corning's Attention. A field of eight was indicated.

Pre-Preakness speculation will be overshadowed tomorrow by the 37th renewal of the $20,000 added Dixie Handicap, a mile and three-sixteenths test expected to draw such stars as C. S. Howard's Midland, Mrs. Ethel V. Marx's Gallahadion, Mrs. Marie Evans' Shot Put and Mrs. A. J. Abel's Honey Cloud, last year's winner.

The Gridiron Club will hold its annual golf tournament at the Salem Country Club on June 26. After they have strutted their stuff on Tony Manero's layout, the Gridiron Club members will retire to Tony Lynch's for the Big Eat ... Charlie "Bam" Crowley has renewed his membership at Wollaston and will be the ball boy. He is a playable at Commonwealth, but handicaps will be generously increased. The course will be at least five strokes harder and a far superior layout ... the Top Town Tavern will stage a two-day amateur-pro "Met" style $500 tournament on June 8 and 9. It will be a 36 hole event and the winner will choose his choice of playing 18 holes day or 36 holes in one day ... It will attract a large field.

AS WHIRLWIND STRUCK—Whirlaway, Derby winner, is shown whirling after coming out of No. 4 stall at the start of the Kentucky Derby. Valdina Paul, who raced from No. 6 post, has come over close to Whirlaway at the break and Boston's Little Beans, who got off to a slow start, is left behind the two horses. Jockey Gigi Moore says Little Beans was not bumped, but was sluggish in getting away. Whirlaway, Valdina Paul and Little Beans are circled in this picture taken by the News of the Day Newsreel.

"We're always figuring how we can save a step here and there, a split second on a double play, etc. Both of us are crazy about the game, and we eat it and talk it and dream it. It's our life."

One will have to admit he and his Indians are away to a pretty false start. And one will have to give his father an assist on the play.

PARK LEAGUE HOLDS FINAL MEETING

Managers and owners of the Boston Park League teams will hold their final pre-season meeting tonight at the Park Department Headquarters at 7:30 to iron out a few minor details before the campaign gets underway next Monday. Managers will present their player rosters which go under the pruning knife June 28 and will receive in return the official schedule for the first week of play.

TOBIN MAY HEAD CLUB
After the June deadline, there will be no transfer of players or will signing be permitted. The usual 25-player limit will be in vogue for the play-offs with eligibility for the championship series to be discussed.

Secretary Bob Cusick will read by-laws and regulations as have been adopted by the league. Director Billy Mullen will preside. Meanwhile, interest lived with the announcement that Mayor Maurice J. Tobin was to take over the Crosby Club of Roxbury. A semi-finalist last year, the new Mayor Tobin Club may be spurred on to greater heights by this new president.

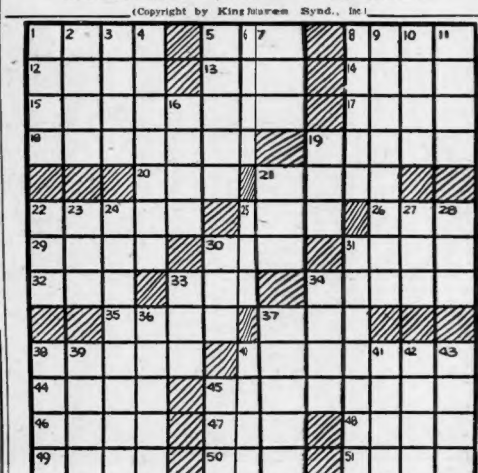

NEW "ANGEL"
Billy Benson of the St. Augustine Club of South Boston proved elated over the sponsorship of the club which has dropped the name "Saints" to become the Linehan Club. The change will make no difference in the locale of the club's home games which will be Columbus Park, at Columbia Circle, in South Boston.

Tom Linehan, the new sponsor, is a City Councilor from South Boston.

THE WEATHER

Official U. S. Weather Bureau Forecast for the period ending Wednesday, May 5.
LOCAL: Increasing cloudiness tonight; Wednesday mostly cloudy with scattered showers; no important temperature changes; gentle southerly winds tonight becoming moderate to fresh Wednesday; lowest temperature tonight near 46 degrees.
MAINE: Increasing cloudiness tonight, slightly warmer in the north portion than last night; Wednesday mostly cloudy with scattered showers.
VERMONT AND NEW HAMPSHIRE: Increasing cloudiness followed by showers late tonight; warmer than last night; Wednesday mostly cloudy with scattered showers.
CONNECTICUT: Increasing cloudiness followed by scattered showers late tonight; warmer than last night; Wednesday mostly cloudy with scattered showers.
RHODE ISLAND: Increasing cloudiness followed by scattered showers late tonight; Wednesday mostly cloudy with scattered showers; no important temperature changes.
GENERAL CONDITIONS
A deep low pressure system prevails over the upper Mississippi valley with trough extending southward to the Texas coast and a center over Northeastern North Dakota. To the east of this trough, a strong current of moist tropical air is streaming up the Mississippi valley. Heavy showers and thunderstorms have occurred in this moist air, with many stations of the West Gulf states reporting more than one inch of rain, and Alexander, La., reporting 3.60 inches in the past 24 hours. This moist stream of air will move slowly eastward, resulting in increasing cloudiness over New England tonight and showers on Wednesday. A current of cool, dry air to the west of the midwestern trough is replacing the warm moist air and has caused the skies to clear over the plains states. Generally fair weather prevails over the eastern seaboard and from the Rocky mountains to the Pacific coast.
5 DAY FORECAST
Extended forecast for the period 7:30 p. m. Tuesday, May 4, to 7:30 p. m. Saturday, May 16.
